OUR LITTLE SON,
Four years old, afflicted with a painful skin disease. Six doctors tried to cure him. All failed. Got worse and worse. Completely cured by one set of Cuticura Remedies, costing $1.75.

Our little son will be four years of age on the 25th inst. In May, 1885, he was attacked with a very painful breaking out of the skin. We called in a physician, who treated him for about four weeks. The child received little or no good from the treatment, as the breaking out, supposed by the physician to be hives in an aggravated form, became larger in blotches, and more and more distressing. We were frequently obliged to get up in the night and rub him with soda in water, strong liniments, etc. Finally, we called other physicians, until no less than six had attempted to cure him, all alike failing, and the child steadily getting worse and worse, until about the 20th of last July, when we began to give him Cuticura Resolvent internally, and the Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally, and by the last of August he was so nearly well that we gave him only one dose of the Resolvent about every second day for about ten days longer, and he has never been troubled since with the horrible malady. In all we used less than one-half of a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, a little less than one box of Cuticura, and only one cake of Cuticura Soap.

The Senate Passes the Bill to Enforce the Scott Act.

A LAME EXPLANATION BY VEST

Continuation of the Debate on the Tariff Bill. Congress to Adjourn One Week from Next Saturday

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The house bill appropriating $50,000 for the enforcement of the Chinese exclusion act was reported by Allison and passed.

Mitchell then proceeded to address the senate in advocacy of the bill heretofore introduced by him to reduce letter postage to one cent. In the event of the proposed reduction being carried out he thought there was no good reason why the unit of weight should not be fixed at two ounces instead of one ounce and why fourth-class matter of merchandise should not be put on an equality with third class. With these changes the present absurd distinction between first, third and fourth-class matter would be wiped out, a uniform rate of one cent for every two ounces would exist on all matter except newspapers and periodicals sent to subscribers, the annoyance that so often results from the detention of matter for insufficient postage would disappear, a temptation to petty fraud by concealment of written matter in matter of a lower grade would vanish and absolute privacy could be given to every parcel of matter mailed, for there would no longer be any reason why it should not all be sealed. The bill was referred to the post-office committee.

The senate then resumed consideration of the tariff bill and was addressed by Cullom. In the course of his remarks Cullom made reference to Vest's letter heretofore frequently referred to as to "the struggle being a fight to the death."

Vest said he wanted to make a statement as to that letter. It was a private letter written on his desk in the senate during a debate and afterward typewritten by his secretary. If he had had the slightest suspicion it would have been made public he would have been more particular in framing its sentences and in the verbiage used, but to any fair minded man the letter was plain and unequivocal.

He sent to the clerk's desk and had read the original memorandum from which the letter was written, including the following sentences:

"We are entering a most fearful presidential contest, the most important since that of 1800. Cleveland by his message, for which I sincerely honor him, has challenged the protected industries of the country to a fight of extermination. The men who are accumulating immense fortunes under the present laws are determined to defeat Cleveland if money and industry will accomplish it. It is useless to disguise the fact that it is a fight to the death and we would be idiots to ignore that fact."

Vest added that any man who did not appreciate the difference between a letter written under the circumstances under which that letter was written and one written to be submitted to the fierce criticism of political opponents would have no further explanation from him. What he had written and what the letter fairly construed did say was that the issue was between the principle of absolute and unlimited protection which he understood to be the principle of the republican party and the principles of the democratic party, which was raising revenue from taxes properly adjusted, and that on that issue the fight was to the death.

Cullom remarked the explanation made the matter no better.

A STRONG SPEECH BY PLATT.

At the close of Cullom's speech Platt addressed the senate.

"The conspiracy against labor," Platt said, "pervaded not a chapter merely but the whole volume of American history. It had often seemed on the eve of victory, had often seemed to triumph, but in the hour of its seeming victory it had been beaten down and baffled and overthrown—now by the ballots of the laboring men and again by their bullets on fiercely contested fields. That conspiracy against labor had early obtained control of the democratic party, through the success of that party it hoped for the accomplishment of its purpose and now it seemingly awaited but the re-election of Grover Cleveland to carry out its ruinous designs." It was and always has been a sectional conspiracy and its name was free trade. Its chief conspirators had always had their home in the same section of country. It had started in South Carolina with Calhoun. Its desire had been two-fold—first to extend the Southern system where labor should be unpaid and ignorant and second to circumscribe the Northern system, a system which encouraged intelligence, virtue and self-respecting and respected labor. The means by which this was to be accomplished was free trade. What he meant by free trade was not the closing of all the custom houses, but what all commercial nations meant by it, a system opposed to protection. There was not a leading democrat in the United States to-day in full communion with his party, enjoying the confidence of the administration, who dared to say that he was a protectionist. Whatever of the protection sentiment and courage there had been in any leading democrat had been crushed out under the iron heel of the administration.

If, by the means which the democrats were now using, by the deception which they were now using, by the imposture by which they were now attempting to secure the vote of the laboring men of the North, if Grover Cleveland should be re-elected these men would rise in their might once more and put down free trade and demand protection, but it would be a sad experiment for them to go through.

THE OSTRACISM OF RANDALL.

He mentioned as one of the saddest incidents in American history the party ostracism of Randall, and his defeat for the speakership because he was a protectionist, and he said that a protectionist could no more be elected speaker of the democratic house of representatives than he could be transplanted to heaven.

It had been necessary to win the president over to the plan of conspiracy. He had been won over and the bait with which he had been captured was a promise of renomination which he had pledged himself not to accept. Randall was a power in the state of Pennsylvania, but Randall has to be stripped of his powers. It was necessary to degrade him or the free trade conspiracy could not prevail. The president's next friend, Wm. L. Scott, had been set to destroy Randall's influence with the state democratic committee, and he had done so by means which, if its secrets were known, would shock even the democratic party. Every follower of Randall in the house of representatives had been given to understand that the price of presidential favor was a vote for the Mills bill. That bill had been concocted by conspirators in the dark, votes had been purchased for it by yielding partial protection to the articles from which it had been drawn, men who had been elected by protectionist constituencies had been cajoled, coaxed, threatened and drilled into the support of the administration. "A vote had been taken and only four democrats had voted with Randall against it, four had been faithful among the faithless found." One of these, Cowden of Pennsylvania, had been beaten for renomination by the influence of the next friend of the administration. Randall had written from his sickbed asking Hogg of West Virginia to pair with him, and because Hogg had done so he also had been beaten for renomination. Could political malignity, Mr. Platt asked, go further than it had in pursuit of Randall, the honest friend of intelligent and enlightened labor? There was no sadder picture than that in American politics, except its companion picture—the ruin and death of John Roach, compassed by a democratic secretary of the navy because he was a protectionist.

Chase next addressed the senate directing his remarks to a contest between the republican and democratic administrations in the management of the postal service of the country. Without concluding his remarks he yielded the floor and the senate adjourned till to-morrow.

GOSSIP ABOUT ADJOURNMENT

It May Come the Latter Part of Next Week or the First of the Week After

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Gen. Clark, clerk of the house of representatives, has to-day been conferring on behalf of the majority in the house with Senator Allison and other republicans of the senate about adjournment. Gen. Clark said the house would take the responsibility of the original resolution and members of the house were in favor of fixing the time for adjournment on Saturday of next week or the Monday of the week after. He asked the senators which they would prefer. The sentiment in the senate is favorable to adjournment one week from next Saturday. Gen. Clark said the house will probably pass a resolution next Wednesday or Thursday and that the senate will doubtless concur.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—As a result of a conference of the members of the house and senate it has been substantially agreed to adjourn congress one week from Saturday.

OREGON LOSES THE SUIT

A Piece of Land on the Mountain Side Is Not a Swamp

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The secretary of the interior has confirmed the decision of the general land commissioner in the case of D. S. Richards vs. the state of Oregon, as presented by the appeal of the state from the decision of the commissioner rejecting the claim of the state to the land in section thirty, township twenty-three south, range thirty-one east, Willamette meridian, Lakeview, Oregon. The state claimed the land on the ground that it was swamp and overflowed, but the proof showed that while it was overflowed by reason of its being located on the mountain and snow melted in summer and overflow from the melting snow so irrigated the land that it was regarded as valuable, otherwise it would be valueless.

THE ACT IS ENFORCED

Chinese Not Allowed to Remain in Harbor Until the Test Case is Tried

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The secretary of the treasury to-day received a telegram from J. D. Spreckels & Bros. of San Francisco saying: "The steamer Duke of Westminster, with Chinese, is awaiting a test case. Must sail to-morrow. Can Chinese be transferred to a hulk for reshipment by the next steamer back to China if the test case goes against them?" Assistant Secretary Maynard replied: "The department is of the opinion that the transfer of Chinese laborers from an importing vessel to the hulk of another vessel in the harbor is contrary to the exclusion act and that neither the department nor the collector has authority to permit such proceeding."

A SMOOTH YOUNG MAN

Max Rosenstern of San Francisco Realizes on His Castles in Spain

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 11.—Max Rosenstern, formerly in the employ of the Anglo-Californian bank, was arrested to-day on a warrant charging him with obtaining money under false pretense in swindling Charles Levy out of $7000. Levy states he has loaned that amount to Rosenstern at various times upon the latter's representation that he had valuable property coming to him in Germany, but that he has discovered Rosenstern's representations were fraudulent. It is claimed that a number of other persons have been victimized by Rosenstern in the same manner.

After young Rosenstern had been locked up several other persons called at the old city hall to relate how they had been swindled. Julius Blumenthal of the Pacific Collection Company, who was once a warm friend of Rosenstern, said that the latter had borrowed from him $1000 upon notes to which he had forged the name of his brother, Dr. Rosenstern.

Harry Lacy, money lender, charges that Rosenstern obtained $800 upon forged notes.

Dewing & Co., booksellers, allege that they advanced Rosenstern $100 as commissions for selling books and afterwards found he had forged orders which he claimed to have secured. When the time came for delivery of the books Rosenstern suddenly left their employ.

Rosenstern refused to make any statement to reporters. He was visited at the city prison by his wife, who was visibly affected by the serious predicament in which her husband finds himself. Levy says he was ruined in business by Rosenstern's borrowings and he will do all he can to secure his conviction. Rosenstern was at one time employed as a clerk in the California Bank at a salary of $75 a month. He is a young man of good natural abilities.

STARTING TEST CASES.

Judge Sawyer Issues Two Writs of Habeas Corpus for Chinese.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 11.—Judge Sawyer of the United States district court returned from Oregon to-day and in court issued two writs of habeas corpus designed to test some of the questions to be raised over the right of Chinese arriving here after the exclusion act went into effect to land. One writ was for a Chinaman on the steamship Belgic, and the other for a Mongolian passenger on the steamship Duke of Westminster. The former case is that of a Chinaman with a return certificate. The principal question to be raised with regard to him is whether congress can constitutionally deprive Chinese who hold custom-house certificates of the right to return here. As the Belgic is a Pacific Mail steamer the claim will be set up that the Chinese who came on that vessel were technically on American soil before the exclusion act was signed. The steamer left Hong Kong last month. In either case probably the only question that will be brought up is whether Chinese without certificates in transit to this country at the time the act went into force legally come under its provisions, as at the time of the passage of the act said Chinaman was on the high seas, and had no means of knowing that such act as the exclusion act had been passed.

SHOT TWO MEN

An Evicted Tenant Resorts to the Revolver to Oppose Force

MONTEREY, Cal., Oct. 11.—A serious shooting scrape occurred to-day at Rawson's ranch, eighteen miles south of Monterey. The property is now owned by Mrs. Alpers of San Francisco. She had placed a man named J. M. Holme in charge. Another man, named Richter, had charge of half the ranch. He accused McHolme of disposing of property without making returns for the same. Mrs. Alpers ordered him off the ranch yesterday, giving him five days' time. This morning Richter and a man named Delphs attempted to oust his family, and as they were roughly handling Mrs. McHolme, McHolme came on them, shooting both. Richter is probably dead now. McHolme came to town and surrendered himself. He secured the services of R. H. Willey to defend him.

Kitcher was shot full in the face. His eyes are shot out and he has made his dying statement.

Republicans Make a Thrilling Demonstration for Blaine.

HALF OF INDIANA TURNS OUT

A Magnificent Parade Reviewed by Harrison and the Maine Statesman. The Latter Speaks in the Evening

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 11.—The republican demonstration to-day was one of the largest and most successful ever held in Indiana. Forty trains poured their thousands into the city. Nearly all of the fifteen railroads ran special trains. Some of the roads were not able to bring all the passengers who desired to come. Not less than a thousand extra passenger coaches were employed. It is estimated that by noon over 40,000 visitors had arrived.

Early in the day the streets became blockaded throughout the business district and pedestrians found it a tedious matter to travel. Scores of bands and drum corps were marching to and fro, and the scene during the morning was one of confusion and noise. Hotel corridors were crowded and the din of fife and drum was to be heard everywhere.

Toward noon the streets around the republican headquarters at the New Denison hotel began to fill and at 1 o'clock nothing but a solid wall of humanity was to be seen for two squares up and down Pennsylvania avenue.

At half past 1 Gen. Harrison, accompanied by Mr. Blaine, arrived at the New Denison and made their way across the crowded balcony to the outer railings. Their appearance was the signal for a tremendous outburst from 30,000 people packed like sardines in the street below. Beside Gen. Harrison stood Mrs. Harrison and Mrs. Dimmick, accompanied by Mrs. Judge Woods and a number of other ladies. Among those on the reviewing balcony were ex-Senator Ferry, Gen. John W. Foster, Gen. Hastings, ex-Gov. Porter, Judge W. I. Giblock, Judge Woods, press representatives and a couple of hundred others.

Tremendous cheering on the appearance of Harrison and Blaine continued several minutes, the cheers being first for Harrison and then for Blaine. Both men repeatedly lifted their hats in acknowledgment.

THE PROCESSION.

At 1:30 the boom of cannon told the waiting thousands that the column had started. It was 2 o'clock when a battalion of police made their way slowly through the dense street, opening a path. As Grand Marshal Millards, followed by fifty mounted aides, passed the reviewing stand they halted a moment with the military procession and saluted. The column was one hour and thirty minutes in passing and it is estimated that there were nearly 12,000 in line, a large majority of whom wore uniforms. There were not less than forty band and drum corps in the procession.

At the rear of the first division came the gigantic Harrison and Morton ball drawn by four horses and rolling continuously on its rapid work. This is the first campaign ball seen in this city and its passage elicited storms of applause and cheers.

One of the most demonstrative organizations was the Irish club, their banner reading "Protection. It's Irish You Know." They also carried a mammoth streamer 100 feet long inscribed in big green letters, "Cead Mille Failthe, to our distinguished American Celt, James G. Blaine."

Perhaps the club that elicited the greatest applause was fifty young girls ranging from 12 to 15 years, Harrison's daughters, from Connersville. They wore jackets of blue with stars and skirts of red, white and blue with blue caps. As the little beauties passed the reviewing stand they gracefully lifted their caps, holding them at salute while they passed and chanting "We are for Harrison." Gen. Harrison and Mr. Blaine saluted them repeatedly.

From Illinois there were a dozen clubs aggregating nearly 3000 manufacturers. One Illinois club carried an old tattered flag of the campaign of 1840 which drew cheers wherever it passed.

ON THE EXPOSITION GROUNDS.

After the review Gen. and Mrs. Harrison took a carriage and were driven home. Blaine was driven to the exposition grounds, arriving at the speaker's stand just as the rear of the great procession reached the ground. Surrounding the stand was a multitude estimated at 30,000. As Blaine entered the stand a mighty shout went up from the multitude, and the din of so many voices mingled with thirty or forty bands and drum corps was almost deafening. Gen. Hovey, Rev. Ira J. Chase, Maj. Calkins and other speakers had preceded Blaine to the exposition grounds. Gen. Hovey made a brief speech, followed by Rev. Chase, candidate for lieutenant governor. Blaine entered as Chase was speaking and the latter discontinued his address. After several minutes the din and cheering subsided, and Blaine stepped forward and said:

"Ladies and Gentlemen: A man might as well take his position on the end of Cape Race and address the Atlantic ocean as to attempt to address this vast crowd. I hope to speak to a small section of this town this evening, but I came out here simply to exchange greetings, to exchange congratulations, and to say to you as you know before I say it, that this great concourse of people means 14,000 majority in Indiana for Harrison and Morton, and furthermore that a demonstration like this of all Indiana is worth 500 speeches from any man living. Good bye."

BLAINE'S SPEECH AT NIGHT

He Shows What Protection Has Accomplished for the West.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 11.—Six thousand people filled Tomlinson hall at night. Gen. Hastings of Pennsylvania and M. J. Murray of Boston entertained the crowd before Mr. Blaine appeared. When he did he was received with great applause. He said that the argument against the protective tariff was on a line to prejudice the West against the East, that the Eastern states got the benefit of protection and the Western states its burden. In answer to this he gave the population of eleven Western states taken in 1840 and compared it to the last census. He also referred to the wealth of those states under the two censuses, showing that in 1860 the aggregate wealth was under $4,000,000,000 and that twenty years afterward it was $16,500,000,000. In 1860 he said those states had 10,000 miles of railroad; to-day they had nearly 80,000 miles of railroad, or nearly three times the mileage as was contained in the whole Union before the civil war. Taking the leading cities of the Western states in 1860, their aggregate population was 670,000, while to-day they have three and a half millions. "This is the way," said Mr. Blaine, "the protective tariff has been retarding the growth and development of the West."

Referring to the foreign commerce of the country which the democrats declared was all gone to pieces, he again quoted from the census to show that from the time America was discovered to the election of Abraham Lincoln aggregate shipments amounted to nine thousand millions of dollars. From 1860 to 1888 aggregate shipments had been $17,500,000,000, almost double as much in twenty-eight years of the present protective tariff as it was during the whole previous history of the American continent.

At the conclusion of his speech Mr. Blaine returned to Gen. Harrison's residence, where he spent the night. He leaves for Evansville to-morrow.

SHERIFF GRANT WANTS PEACE

He Offers to Withdraw, if Mayor Hewitt Will Do Likewise

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Sheriff Hugh J. Grant comes out in an announcement to-day that he is ready to withdraw as the Tammany Hall candidate for mayor in case Mayor Hewitt, the county democratic nominee, will do likewise, in favor of a union candidate. Mr. Grant speaks of his and Tammany's anxiety for the success of the national ticket and an unwillingness to do anything to jeopardize the city's local fight.

THE REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The republicans to-night nominated Joel B. Erhardt for mayor.

THE TERRITORIAL CAMPAIGN

Republicans of Vancouver Turn Out En Masse to Hear John B. Allen

VANCOUVER, W. T., Oct. 11.—Judging from the festive aspect of Main street to-night, festooned with flags and made light as day by immense bonfires, and the excited crowds that lined the street, it would appear that the republicans outnumber the democrats considerably in Vancouver and vicinity. The sweet strains of the Fourteenth infantry band soon collected an audience that filled the Standard theater to its utmost capacity, scarcely leaving standing room, greeting the republican nominee for delegate to congress, the Hon. John B. Allen.

The meeting was called to order at a quarter to 8 o'clock by Mr. Scott Swetland, chairman of the republican county central committee.

Maj. Bensite, J. D. Geoghegan, F. W. Lier, F. E. Thompson, J. W. Snodgrass, J. H. Fletcher and George Goddard were called to act as vice presidents of the evening.

The Hon. N. H. Bloomfield then introduced the speaker with a few appropriate and telling remarks.

The Hon. John B. Allen, having been received with tremendous applause, then proceeded to plead the cause of the party whose nominee he was in terms more eloquent than ever uttered to a Vancouver audience. In a brief sketch outlining the past record of the republican party he then devoted himself to the burning issues of the day. After reviewing the causes which led to the introduction of a protective tariff and after depicting the effects of that system as affecting this great nation he showed the dire results that would follow its abandonment by drawing a comparison between the Chinese and the nations of Western Europe on the one side and this great republic on the other.

Touching the question of forfeiture of the Northern Pacific land grants he demolished his distinguished antagonist's position by pointing out that owing to his stubbornness in adhering to total forfeiture he had let the time pass in which a partial restoration to the public domain could have been accomplished.

He then demonstrated the inefficiency and ridiculous character of the democratic omnibus admission bill, the consideration of which his antagonist claimed had been frustrated by republican filibustering in the house. Had Mr. Voorhees really desired to secure the admission of Washington territory all he had to do was to persuade eight of his democratic brethren to assist in the passage of the Dolph bill.

He met Mr. Voorhees's attacks on his character, denouncing him as a tool of the Northern Pacific railroad, with a few dignified and telling remarks, explaining the professional character of his services in the case of Yakima City vs. the Railroad Company.

He closed his graceful and impressive address with a final appeal to stand by his party, upon the banner of which is inscribed "Protection to American Industries and Labor."

The Rev. J. P. Thompson, ex-president of the territorial council, then addressed the audience, urging upon those inclined to favor the third party to note the uselessness of their attempt at this time and invoking their assistance in the election of the republican nominee.

The Hon. N. H. Bloomfield closed the grandest political demonstration ever witnessed in Vancouver with a few witty and pertinent remarks, whereupon three hearty cheers for John B. Allen resounded through the hall.

DISEASED MEAT

Cattle in the Last Stages of Consumption Killed for San Francisco Markets.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 11.—The question of diseased meats is causing much discussion here. It is not one of the sensations in which there is much talk and little fact. There are facts at the bottom of the investigation now going on. One of the most hopeful signs is that the butchers' association as a body and as individuals are taking hold of the matter to try to remedy the defects. This much can be stated in general, however, to the benefit of the stockgrowers in Oregon and Washington territory, that most if not all of the diseased cattle have been found to have come from south of this city.

The statement made a day or two since by a public official that the disease first came from a herd of cattle that had been driven here from Oregon is now understood to be founded on misinformation. Oregon cattle and Southern California cattle were placed together on the same range and the foreman thought at first the disease arose from the Oregon stock, while later the opposite was found to be true.

A tour of Dr. Thomas Bowhill through Butchertown yesterday resulted in finding five cattle diseased, four with tuberculosis in the last stages of consumption and one with anthrax. They were ordered destroyed at once. A. J. Schrader, in whose stalls they were found, said they were dairy fed, but refused to tell where they came from.

Again the Butchers' Protective Association was addressed by A. S. Mercer of the national bureau of animal industry, also by Dr. Bowhill, the surgeon employed by the board of health. Many startling facts were revealed to the association. Mercer told them California cattle were more or less diseased in every district south of San Francisco to the Mexican line. He referred to the cases of tuberculosis found upon the very first inspection of Butchertown and stated that twelve out of every 100 persons who die with consumption contract it from using either the milk or meat of cattle diseased with tuberculosis. In addition to the four found yesterday thirteen were found and condemned a few days before by the market inspector, which as he said were so near gone that they could hardly stand up to be knocked down and yet they were about to be butchered and put on the market. At this rate there was no telling how much diseased meat had been run in on the city markets because the city had employed but one market inspector and no one man, be he ever so skillful, could begin to attend to all the work. In round terms he condemned the city meat markets as absolutely rotten, a fact largely ascertained by investigation.

EQUITY FOR SEATTLE

A Committee of Her Citizens Pay a Visit to Mr Henry Villard

SPOKANE FALLS W T Oct 11 — While it is known that some of Seattle's influential men are in St Paul holding a conference with Henry Villard relative to railroad matters affecting that city it is not generally known who those men are and the exact object of their mission The men are A A Denny Bailey Gatzert Judge J [illegible] Hoyt John Leary and [illegible] J Hunt They were the bearers of three propositions to Mr Villard as follows

First That the Northern Pacific Company assume control of the Puget Sound Shore Railroad and construct a wide gauge extension from some point on that line to what is known as the Common Point on the main line about three miles from Franklin

The second proposition is that the Columbia & Puget Sound narrow gauge road from Black River Junction be made a wide gauge and extended to the common point

The third is that rates from all points to Tacoma and Seattle be exactly the same It is understood that whatever arrangement is effected will also involve substantial equity with respect to the passenger service

There are good reasons for believing that Mr Villard will consider the matter sympathetically and will do all in his power to make some satisfactory and permanent adjustment of Seattle's claims It may be said to those who do not understand what the phrase common point means that it is a point on the main line of the Northern Pacific equally distant from Seattle and Tacoma as the crow flies SAREF

Additional Details of the Lehigh Valley Disaster.

HEARTRENDING SCENES OF AGONY

Frantic Relatives of the Victims Beat Down the Locked Doors of the Funeral Train Death in Awful Aspects

WILKESBARRE Penn Oct 11 — The first word of the dreadful accident at Mud Run on the Lehigh Valley road was received at 11 o'clock last night There were nearly 600 people from Luzerne and Lackawanna counties in the excursion at Hazleton There were seventy eight cars from Wilkesbarre the number of passengers being about [illegible] The sections were all crowded to suffocation forming conditions for a terrible loss of life The people flocked to the depot wringing their hands in agony The railroad officials could not or would not give any information nor would they furnish the facilities for any one to go to the scene though anxious ones offered any price Throughout the night the depot was thronged by hundreds of persons suffering untold agony over the uncertainty The throng was loud in its denunciation of the company for refusing all information and causing needless suffering At 10 A M arrangements were made for the receipt of a large number of the wounded at the hospital The rumor was soon confirmed that the officials were expecting twenty five of the victims, and with such a list of wounded coming in this direction the public pulse stood still over the horrible possibilities and a thousand fainting hearts quivered in dread Many persons were waiting there during the long dreary hours from 11 to 1 in the morning and took the southbound train which passed here at 3 10 and went to the scene of the disaster There they learned that the third section of the excursion train had stood on the track a few hundred yards from Mud Run waiting for the sections ahead to get out of the way The flagman some say, had been sent back with a lantern to guard the train from the rear Suddenly the passengers on the rear platform saw a train approaching at a high rate of speed Several jumped and escaped In an instant the flash of a headlight illuminated the interior of the ill fated rear car There was a crash and the engine plunged full length into the crowded mass of humanity The shock drove the rear car through the next one two-thirds of its length The second car was forced into the third Not a single person escaped from this rear car The second car was crowded with maimed and bleeding bodies and the third car had but a few passengers who escaped The uninjured of both trains made their way out of the cars, and on going to the telescoped engine and cars the shattered engine was pouring forth a stream of scalding water and steam which hid from their eyes the fullest measure of the horrible scene while its hissing sound deadened the shrieks and groans of those imprisoned in the wreck. Ghastly white faces peered into the windows to be greeted by faces far more ghastly Some of the dead sat pinioned in their seats erect as in life staring open eyed as if aware of the horrible surroundings As the steam and smoke cleared from the rear car an awful sight was revealed Timbers were crushed and wrenched while on all sides hung mangled bodies and limbs

A few bodies not mangled were burned and scalded by the steam and but little remained in the rear car which bore a human semblance When the shock of the first crash had in a measure subsided the uninjured began to do what could be done for their unfortunate companions The few light tools on the train proved but feeble instruments indeed The St Francis Pioneer corps who were on the train, plied with zeal broadaxes meant only for holiday occasions They were however, but little adapted to work and were soon rendered useless In the meantime the windows of the cars were smashed in and brave men entered and released those who were least hurt or least entangled John Lynch of Wilkesbarre was hanging from the roof by one leg His cries brought his friends who stood upon the wreckage and held his weight upon their backs until he was released A young lady was found caught by her lower limbs one limb was quickly released but the other could not be freed, unfortunately a misdirected blow of an ax severed it from her body She heroically bore her torture, but could not survive the shock and soon died

THE WORK OF RESCUE

To free the bodies in the rear car trainmen attached a locomotive to the wrecked engine and started to pull it from the wreck The first movement of the shattered wreck brought forth from the wounded such awful cries of distress that surrounding friends ordered the engineer to desist on pain of his life They did not wish to see the mangled forms still further mutilated A few houses about the spot were thrown open to the sufferers, and bonfires were lighted to aid in the work of relief. It is not probable that the work will be completed before noon.

Passengers on the rear train state that they saw the train ahead when far down the road, and they sprang from their seats and stared in wonder and surprise that the train did not slack its speed. Suddenly the engineer and firemen were seen to jump and then came the shock Engineer Harry Cook and Fireman Hugh Gallagher sustained but slight injuries The fireman saw a red light and informed the engineer and then jumped The passengers gave many different accounts of the probable cause of the accident some attributing it to the negligence of the flagman in not going back with the red light

The train from the scene of the accident arrived this morning, bringing a number of those who went down to make inquiries and from them the foregoing facts were gleaned

The scenes about the depot are of the most distressful character. A special train of three cars arrived here at 5 o'clock this morning from the wreck, with twenty four injured persons They were placed in the city hospital Many were injured and badly burned by sparks from engine smoke stacks

FIFTY-SEVEN DEAD BODIES

Awful Scenes Aboard the Funeral Train—A Frantic Crowd.

WILKESBARRE, Oct 11 —At 6.30 this evening a funeral train arrived in Wilkesbarre bearing fifty-seven dead bodies They had been partially prepared for burial, and lay upon boards placed upon the backs of seats in three passenger coaches As the train drew up to Wilkesbarre depot a dozen policemen were required to keep back the frantic crowd of friends and relatives, who had come from Scranton and Pleasant Valley to meet the dead. A special coach had been provided for these friends, but, they insisted on entering the cars containing the dead, and were only stopped by force and the efforts of five priests who were on the train.

One body was removed from the cars at Wilkesbarre The train then continued on its way, over the Delaware & Hudson road, to Miners' Mills and Scranton The people in the special coach again began to clamor for permission to enter the funeral cars, but were again refused, it being alleged that no one had the keys Several who were in search of missing friends became desperate and soon broke down the car doors and began a frantic search for their loved ones Clothes were torn from mangled and [illegible] bodies to reveal [illegible] the St Al[illegible] and other members of the [illegible] who knew that their relatives were [illegible] flocked into the cars [illegible] the attire and the coverings of the corpses Many were [illegible] friends endeavored to lessen their frightful appearance

FRANTIC SHRIEKS AND SCREAMS

At Miners Mills the train stopped to leave the body of James Flynn No light could be obtained and much of the work was done in partial darkness

It was as the train drew up at Pleasant Valley that the most heartrending scenes were enacted Ropes had been stretched about the depot and guards kept the immense throng back The shrieks and screams of the stricken friends and relatives were pitiful in the extreme The first body carried out was that of Oscar Gibbons 11 years of age borne in the arms of his stalwart brother Then one after another forty six white sheeted bodies were carried out and given into charge of friends The shrieks and cries of the women and the hoarse shouts and imprecations of the men made a terrible scene When all were out the train again pulled out to bear the remaining dead to Scranton Minooka and points beyond

It is impossible to tell the number of wounded Twenty five were brought here to the hospital, and numbers of other slightly injured have gone to their homes

THE CHICAGO STRIKE

The City Authorities Propose to Enforce the Laws.

CHICAGO Oct 11 —Chief of Police Hubbard this afternoon issued a general order that the police must keep the crowds moving and strongly repress all disorder from its inception, using whatever amount of force may be necessary to accomplish the result

Mayor Roche says it looks as if the city authorities will have to fight to maintain order

At Sedgwick and Lincoln avenues this afternoon a crowd of 3000 rotten-egged the new drivers The horses ran away damaging two or three cars, but the police finally restored order

This afternoon two dozen new men escorted by police were brought to the Western avenue barns on the west side A rumor spread that the company was about to start a dozen cars A mob of 3000 soon gathered and advanced in a determined manner The crowd fled when the police charged but some of the strikers refused to move and nine of them were arrested

PROCLAMATION BY THE MAYOR

CHICAGO Oct 11 —In view of the riotous demonstrations yesterday, Mayor Roche this morning issued a proclamation calling on the people of the city not to congregate on the streets Some cars were run on the north side this morning The tracks were torn up in a number of places and obstructions placed at many points making the progress slow It is rumored that a conference is in progress looking to a settlement President Yerkes denies this and declares the fight is one to death It is announced that an attempt will be made to run cars on the west side at 1 o'clock this afternoon and serious trouble is anticipated notwithstanding a full committee of strikers called on Captain Aldrich this morning and proferred assistance in suppressing any disturbance

AN EXCITING TRIP.

At 4 o'clock two cars were sent out in the West division About 125 policemen were on duty and succeeded in keeping the crowd which numbered 5000 from interfering The trip back and forth on Madison street was full of excitement At two points stones were hurled one of which struck a woman knocking her down The thrower of a second stone was immediately arrested

At Halstead street a great mob was collected part of which attempted to [illegible] the driver of the car but the police kept the crowd in check

Julius Kaiselburg a former conductor on the Sedgwick street line was locked up at the Chicago avenue station, and Captain Schaack, who expresses an opinion that the man is a dynamiter is carefully investigating Some bombs about the size of walnuts were found, and whether these contain enough explosive to be dangerous will be determined by investigation

THE EMPEROR AT ROME

King Humbert Meets Him With a Cordial Greeting.

THE JOURNEY TO THE QUIRINAL

To-day the Emperor Will Visit the Vatican, in His Own State Carriage—Much Enthusiasm Shown by the Populace

ROME Oct 11 Emperor William arrived here at 1 o'clock this afternoon and was met at the station by King Humbert The greeting between the monarchs was most cordial Large crowds lined the street from the station to the Quirinal An enthusiastic welcome was extended to the German emperor

THE PRESENTATION

After the two monarchs had embraced the king presented to Emperor William the crown prince of Italy, the Dukes of Aosta and Genoa Prime Minister Crispi Gen Pallavicini prefect of Rome and leading court dignitaries Emperor William in turn presented the members of his suite and then inspected the guard of honor which was drawn up on the platform The troops saluted and the massed bands played the German national anthem

The two monarchs entered an open state carriage, drawn by six horses and escorted by cuirassiers Following the royal carriage came carriages occupied by Prince Henry of Prussia the crown prince of Italy, Duke of Aosta Duke of Genoa, Premier Crispi Count Herbert Bismarck Count Vonsolms Sonnewalde the German ambassador, and Gen Liebman

On arriving at the Quirinal Emperor William was received by Count Giannotti master of ceremonies and conducted to the reception saloon where the queen was in waiting surrounded by the ladies of the court The emperor gave his arm to the queen and proceeded to the central balcony followed by King Humbert and others of the party There was a crowd of 50 000 persons massed in front of the palace and the appearance of the party was the signal for an outburst of cheers and waving of handkerchiefs and countless flags

When the party retired from the balcony the cheering became so persistent that the emperor twice showed himself to the people

THE VATICAN TAKES A BACK SEAT

After difficult negotiations, it was found impossible for Emperor William to visit the Vatican before receiving the Italian state dignitaries

To-morrow the emperor will drive to the Vatican in a state carriage which with horses was specially sent from Berlin for that purpose Before leaving the Vatican the emperor will confer with Cardinal Rampolla in a private apartment After making his adieus to the pope, he will return to the Prussian legation, and will drive thence to the Quirinal in the Italian state carriage

Emperor William visited the residence of the duke of Aosta and the duke of Genoa and in the evening he attended a grand family ball given in his honor at the Quirinal

During the journey of the royal party to the palace Premier Crispi being much applauded turned toward Count Herbert Bismarck and said "These marks of approval are intended for you rather than for me They signify that the alliance with Germany is very popular in Italy"

Emperor William has ordered the syndic to thank the people of Rome for the enthusiastic greeting extended to them

DEPOPULATING CUBA.

Cigar Makers on a Strike Will Leave the Island With Their Families.

TAMPA, Fla., Oct 11 —Fifteen weeks ago a cigar makers' strike was inaugurated in Havana Unable to fight the trust which the manufacturers formed on their own soil the cigar-makers determined on a plan which threatens to destroy one of Cuba's greatest industries It is nothing less than a movement to depopulate the island of every striking cigar maker Alamava Obrero a labor organization similar to the Knights of Labor has taken charge of the strike Gen Enrique Roig, editor of El Productor is now in the United States placing the situation before American manufacturers and employes Largely attended meetings have already been held in Florida cities There are 150 factories in Havana and about 6000 men on a strike Every cigar maker in Key West and Tampa agreed to pay $1 a week towards the support of the strikers, and hundreds agreed to receive and house families coming from Havana, and Mr Mone has offered to take at once 500 operatives into his new factory Two hundred families are on the way and will arrive this week Others will follow as fast as they can secure transportation.

THE WHITECHAPEL MURDERS

The "Pall Mall Gazette" Makes Serious Charges Against the Chief of Police.

THE OREGON CITY WOOLEN MILLS

And How They Would be Injured by the Passage of the Mills Bill

SAN FRANCISCO Oct 11 —The following interview with B Sh[illegible]ldeman of Brown Bros & Co this city, and owners of the Oregon City Woolen Mills at Oregon City, aptly shows what effect the Mills bill will have upon the woolen industry and upon those employed in it.

"The Mills bill," said he "removes the import duty of 10 cents a pound upon raw wool Upon 1000 pounds of raw wool the manufacturer gains $100 by this provision One thousand pounds of raw wool will make 350 pounds of cloth Upon woolen cloth there is a specific duty of 35 cents a pound This is likewise removed by the bill and upon 350 pounds of cloth the manufacturer consequently loses $122 50 The first sum, subtracted from the last shows a discrimination against the manufacturer of $22 50 upon every 1000 pounds of raw wool or 350 pounds of woolen cloth, Now, when this sums up into millions of pounds, it doesn't take long to make a very heavy loss, The European wool cloth manufacturer makes just $22 50 on every 350 yards of cloth he turns out of his mills; we will lose that amount for we will have to compete with him The wool-grower will lose $100 on every 1000 pounds of wool which he grows, while the manufacturer will gain nothing, because the gain accruing is offset by the removal of the specific duty of 35 cents a yard on cloth The only one who is really in pocket is the European manufacturer.

"It is true the ad valorem duty of 40 per cent. is increased to 45 per cent, but that is too small to cut any figure whatever on the profits de[illegible] Of course, the loss does not fall on us alone All our losses must be shared by our employes For instance, if we are to lose $22 50 on every 350 yards of cloth we produce, why, our hands must be reduced correspondingly in wages Now labor stands to material about 50 per cent, of the cost of production. This is my estimate from over eight months of careful figuring The wages of hands in European woolen mills is 50 per cent. less than on this coast. The American manufacturer must not only compete with Europe on a reduced scale of values of his goods but must fight him on the question of wages, for he can get his help at 50 per cent less than we can In other words our labor costs us, for example, 50 per cent while it costs him 25 per cent, We employ 175 hands at our mills at Oregon City and our payroll there amounts to $6000 a month As we make up much of the cloth into men's wearing apparel our payroll here is about $8000 a month When you consider the aggregate amount the manufacturer will lose it is simply appalling"

NO MORE CHINESE WANTED

Passengers in Bond Will Not B[illegible]ried by the C P

MONTREAL Oct 11 Two Chinamen arrived at Bonaventura station from British Columbia bound for New York They had come over the Canadian Pacific railway and claimed to be residents of the United States returning to their adopted home Each had a certificate from the collector of customs at San Francisco to the effect that the bearers were what they represented themselves to be The collector of customs at Plattsburg however refused to allow the Chinamen to enter the United States They were put off the train at La[illegible] but were later brought back to Montreal They are now in custody of the Canadian customs officers

Four others came through yesterday. Should they try to enter the United States they also will be refused admittance Meanwhile the Chinamen are wards of the railway company and must either stay in Canada by payment of $50 poll tax or the company must send them back to Hong Kong In the meantime orders have been telegraphed to the Pacific end of the railway to take no more Chinamen as passengers.

Association of Congregational Churches

SAN FRANCISCO Oct 11 —The third day's session of the conference of general association of Congregational churches of California now in progress at the Congregational church in Alameda was very largely attended A resolution introduced on a previous day denouncing the Scott exclusion bill as unjust and constituting an act of bad faith on the part of the government was then brought up A lively discussion was anticipated but none resulted The conference had considered the resolution inadvisable and impolitic When the resolution came up it was quietly and unanimously tabled without discussion

The following resolutions were adopted

Resolved That we reaffirm our confidence in the principle of total abstinence and in the movement for destruction of the legalized liquor traffic to be consummated in constitutional prohibition

Resolved, That we hail as a step in advance local option agitation, and commend this measure to the active support of our church

After this a prohibitionist member introduced a resolution endorsing the prohibition party and commending its interests to the Congregational churches of the state The conference however, declined to go into the business of indorsing political parties, and voted the resolution down

A Complaint From Seattle

SAN FRANCISCO Oct. 11 —From information received here the Seattle people want to know why San Francisco mails arrive in their town a day late The mail from this city Monday arrives at Seattle on Wednesday night at 9 30 o'clock if the train arrives at Portland on time It is late as has often been the case, of late it misses connection with the Northern Pacific train for Seattle, and does not arrive in Seattle until Wednesday afternoon. AN INTERESTING CASE

A somewhat interesting case was on trial before Judge Shattuck and a jury yesterday. Mr J N Crossland of Pennsylvania shipped five cases of household goods to this city intending to follow them but his wife becoming sick they did not come. He had paid the freight on the goods in advance but when they were finally delivered to the O R Co here for storage there was $7 due on them for expenses. The goods were advertised and sold four months after and now Mr Crossland [illegible] the O R Co to recover the value thereof alleged to be about $700. The five cases sold at auction only realized $63. Three of them were bought by John Wier[illegible] man and in them was some $[illegible] worth of silverware.

The goods were advertised as being marked to Crossland [illegible] and one point involved is whether they were legally advertised and [illegible] whether the company had a right to sell any more than would pay their claim. The jury [illegible] returned a verdict at a late hour

Thomas Carr James Carr and Richard [illegible] arrested for the larceny of a box of cigars from the store of Mrs [illegible] Stewart were held to answer in the sum of $100 bonds each yesterday by Judge Dement

Mrs Stewart testified to the boys' coming into her store at [illegible] Alder street on Wednesday evening and offering for sale a bonnet. The one that had the bonnet represented himself to be in very straitened circumstances telling her that he needed the money for the purpose of buying a ticket to his home in Seattle

In order to get rid of them she took the bonnet although she suspected that it might be a stolen one at the time. When the boys left she discovered that a box of cigars had left also

Later at night the boys took the cigars to the Turner hall saloon and there offered them for sale. They were soon after arrested

THEY WERE TOO FOND OF PIES

James Cummings James Boody and Tom Jones a trio of law breakers had an examination yesterday before the police judge on a charge of larceny. Early yesterday morning it appears that a feeling akin to hunger took hold of them and in order to appease their craving in that direction they concluded to go into some restaurant where the necessaries of life are kept and help themselves. This they accordingly did. Coming to the restaurant of Wm Zavery on B street between First and Second the largest of the three put his shoulders to the door and the trio were soon inside. Once inside only what might have been expected followed. A brief banquet was enjoyed and when Officer Jones came along a short time afterwards there was a sudden exodus

One of them was caught while the other two first took a little run before falling into the hands of the law half an hour later

When caught it [illegible] that every close [illegible] still existed between the boys and [illegible] They had in their possession a [illegible] a piece of cake cookies and remnants of pie

Cummings offered [illegible] excuse for the [illegible] by him that he was so drunk at the time that he did not know what he was doing [illegible] he told under [illegible] they would [illegible] transportation. The other two [illegible]

STRETCHING THE GREAT CABLES

What May Be Seen by a Visit to Oregon City—Dimensions of the Bridge

The most interesting stage of the work upon the Oregon City suspension bridge has been reached and many now watch daily the stretching of the cables

The cables are on reels at the eastern terminus of the bridge and drawn across by means of a stationary engine on the west side. A steel rope is first passed across over the towers and attached to the end of the wire cable. This is then drawn across over rollers fixed upon the towers and fastened to its anchorage in the rock

Fourteen of the individual cables each some 900 feet in length 1¼ inches in diameter made of galvanized steel wire and weighing between 5000 and 6000 pounds. Seven of them will be strung on each side of the bridge and secured tightly together by surrounding clamps eight feet apart bolted [illegible] thus making practically two immense cables as the support of the bridge [illegible] inches in diameter 900 feet long and weighing nearly 80 000 pounds. The cables are anchored in solid masonry. Pits are excavated in the rock 4x6 feet in size and 13 feet deep. At the bottom of this pit a heavy [illegible] with an eyebar for each of the seven cables projecting up to the mouth. This casting is then secured in its place by masonry built into the pit. The cable is fastened to the eyebar by means of a yoke which passes through the eyebar and is [illegible] to the cable by a pin which slips [illegible] the bars of the yoke and is held in place [illegible] screwed upon them

The floor of the bridge will be sustained by [illegible] descending perpendicularly from the main cables at intervals of 16 feet. To these will be attached the floor beams which are [illegible] inches in diameter and 15 feet long. Upon the floor beams which are laid at right angles with the bridge will be laid the floor of Oregon fir. This will be 16 feet wide in the clear and will consist of a single thoroughfare no division being made for foot passengers. The towers are 90 feet in height and the floor of the bridge will be 70 feet above the river's surface, low water. The towers are 4.0 feet apart and the bridge proper comes so close to the bank on either side that no approaches are necessary

DESCRIPTION OF A "FYKE"

One of This Sort of Nets Ordered in Portland—Trapping Fish

At the establishment of a dealer in nets and twines a reporter yesterday saw a large fyke. Probably there are a great many in this section who do not know what a fyke is [illegible] may be stated that it is a net formed into a sort of trap for catching fish. It is in the shape of a cylinder extended by hoops and has a funnel shaped entrance. It is set by making one end fast to a stake in the stream and allowing the current to stretch it to its full length. Wings stretch out on each side of the entrance, sloping down stream which serve to guide the fish to the funnel shaped mouth of the net and when they have once entered [illegible] they may be considered as caught

This kind of a net or trap can be set and left all day and all night or as long as desired and when the owner comes to lift it he finds all the fish which have entered it alive and well with their noses near the upper end. The fyke above mentioned was ordered by a man who intends to use it in catching fall trout and he will doubtless make a grand success of it if he sets it in a [illegible]

The fyke is a very deadly trap and in most countries where fishing is carried on is prohibited. At the same place was seen a large roll of trout net which is also used for catching the fall trout which ascend the Cowlitz, Lewis, Clackamas, Sandy and other streams in this region in large numbers during the rainy season

They find a ready market here and bring a good price and a [illegible] to trap and net them it will not be many years till they become scarce

THE CASE OF MR STEWART

Various Necessary Contributions Made to Relieve the Wants of His Family

Attention was called a short time since in these columns to the case of Mr Stewart of Rooster Rock precinct, whose house was burned while he was assisting a neighbor whose home was in danger of being burned

The result was that several persons left money at this office for Mr Stewart and Mr W S Ladd sent Mr Stewart orders on Olds & King Olds & Summers and the Brownsville Woolen Mills, and recommended him to Messrs Foster & Robertson and Allen & Lewis who responded liberally. Mr and Mrs Stewart who have two little children and who lost everything they had were brought into town by a neighbor, and on the orders secured quite an outfit to start life with again. Mr [illegible] donated a bedstead and Mr McKenzie of the Singer Sewing Machine Company a sewing machine and the people of Mount Tabor $20 worth of goods

Mr Stewart wishes to return his grateful acknowledgments to all who so kindly aided him in his distress and says the sympathy shown for his wife and little one has given him fresh courage to renew the battle of life

C. W. BEERS, THE NEW SECRETARY

He Gives His Views About the Prospects for Useful Work of the Y M C A

An OREGONIAN reporter found Mr C W Beers, the newly elected Young Men's Christian Association's general secretary at the rooms of the association yesterday afternoon busily opening and arranging his private library. He is a pleasant appearing man of about 30 years of age stoutly built with dark hair and moustache. Mr Beers is a married man but does not contemplate bringing his wife to Portland until next January

My first general secretary work [illegible] in reply to the reporter's inquiries was in connection with the Santa Barbara association though I have been an active Y M C A worker ever since my childhood. About twenty years ago I helped to organize one of the first associations in [illegible]. Afterwards I was actively connected with the Carleton college Y M C A at Northfield Minnesota during my four years course. About a year and a half ago I was elected to the general secretaryship at Santa Barbara from which work I was [illegible] called here"

How do you find the Portland association as compared with that of other cities?

"As to its personnel it contains some of the choicest young men I have ever had the pleasure of meeting. I consider the organization itself in a healthy condition. It is the first appointed [illegible] on the coast as to its accommodations and equipments without a building of its own and compares very favorably with any of those in their own buildings outside of San Francisco. As to its work of course the associations are very few which do not excel in some special feature to the neglect of others. San Francisco is an exception and is my ideal of an association but Secretary McCoy is one man among a thousand being a marvel in all the special lines of work which we pursue. Los Angeles for instance is equal in its religious efforts to some of the large cities. San Diego has especially developed the social feature. The Portland association should do well and be conspicuous for it is, like the city a sort of a key to the whole Northwest."

Being questioned about the utility of the various features of association work Mr Beers expressed himself as heartily interested and believing in the employment and boarding house, the gymnastic the educational branches of the work. None should be neglected he thought because all are essential, though they are only adjuncts to the spiritual development of the young men."

"It is this quality of versatility or of giving to each department its proper attention, that is so scarce and yet so essential to the successful secretary. I endeavor to do this myself, though the personal work among young men is that feature which I like best and to which I am best adapted

I consider the time as specially auspicious for us here, owing to Mr Moody's presence. He is an association man clear through. Indeed it was through his efforts that Mr McCoy was brought to San Francisco from the East. Mr Moody saved the association there from being sold under the hammer by his personal exertions when there in 1881

Mr Noel H Jacks the newly elected superintendent of the Northwestern associations will be here about the 20th inst. He has already signified an intention to make this city his official headquarters

"I have formed no definite plans as to details as yet not having met with the committees. We shall soon however open our evening classes."

CHINESE EXCLUSION ACT

Mr Abraham, Collector of Customs, Receives a Copy From Washington Yesterday

Collector of Customs Hyman Abraham received yesterday a copy of the [illegible] relating to the exclusion of Chinese dated at Washington, D C October 2

To Collectors and Other Officers of Customs: Your attention is called to the following act, approved October 1 prohibiting the return to the United States of Chinese laborers [illegible] provisions may be strictly enforced [illegible] into effect

Be it enacted by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America in congress assembled. That from and after the passage of this act it shall be unlawful for any Chinese laborer who shall at any time heretofore have been and who may now or hereafter be a resident within the United States and who shall have departed or shall depart therefrom and shall not have returned before the passage of this act to return to or remain in the United States

Sec [illegible] That no certificates of identity provided for in the fourth and fifth sections of the act to which this is a supplement shall hereafter be issued and every certificate heretofore issued in pursuance thereof is hereby declared void and of no effect and the Chinese laborer claiming admission by virtue thereof shall not be permitted to enter the United States

Sec 3 That all the duties prescribed liabilities penalties and forfeitures imposed and the powers conferred by the second tenth eleventh and twelfth sections of the act to which this is a supplement are hereby extended and made applicable to the provisions of this act

Sec 4 That all such part or parts of the act to which this is a supplement as are inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed

AN ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING

The Blaine Club Have a Lively Time at Union Hall Last Night

The meeting of the Blaine club at Union hall last night was the most numerously attended of any yet held under its auspices. The large hall was crowded and every seat was occupied

Among the communications read one was from Representative Binger Hermann in which he signified his intention of speaking for the club should he return before the presidential election

Mr Hermann predicts from his knowledge of the political situation in the East that New York state will go republican by at least 40 000 majority

The Lincoln Glee Club composed of [illegible] republicans rendered several very interesting campaign songs and received repeated encores

The principal speaker of the evening was Col S R Harrington. He touched on a variety of political topics and handled his subjects in a very able and highly satisfactory manner

Judge J F Caples who just joined the club last night gave one of his characteristic humorous speeches which elicited much applause. Although the hall was crowded not one left during the speeches that were delivered

By actual count forty five new members were added to the club last night. The club is in a very prosperous condition and now claims to be the largest republican club in the city. Its membership is over six hundred

Six hundred silk Harrison and Morton badges were ordered for the club and will be worn in the grand parade to-night. In the parade the club will have a band of its own. This was thought necessary owing to the large membership. Members of the club will meet at Union hall at 7 o'clock to-night. They are asked to invite their friends to come with them and to turn out in the big parade.

The special committee on celebration has appointed President M G Griffin marshal of the club in the parade to-night and the following as assistants: Hon J F Caples, John B Duff, P Ryan, Washington Powers, P G Young, P B Sinnott, W H Parton, Jas Lotan, G I Story, Judge B F Dennison, R P Earhart, Jas Steventon, Thos Jordan, Col Harrington, W Black, Neil O'Hare, C I Petch, Andrew Walsh, Clark Hay

In Keeping With Its Record

Troy (N Y) Times

This later revelation (Benet's circular) recalls the order to return the rebel battle flags captured by Union heroes. It supplements Mr Cleveland's insulting vetoes of pension bills the open preference for ex Confederate soldiers and the general contempt for Union soldiers that have marked the conduct of the present democratic administration. But it exceeds all that has gone before as a cowardly infamous assault on defenseless women and children

Take the Northern Pacific Railroad, (the dining car route) for all points east. Office, No. 2 Washington street.

FROM THE EAST SIDE SUBURB

Description of the New Handsome M E Church Edifice in Albina

Two Scoundrels Well Drubbed Death of an Old Citizen—Teachers' Institutes—An Excellent Material—Work Completed

As the new M E church on Russell street in Albina nears completion a fair idea of what it will look like when finished can be obtained. The edifice is all enclosed the outside is painted and the carpenters are now at work on the fine tower that rises along the south side of the building. The interior will be arranged for seating 400 people but will accommodate more if crowded. At the east end the pulpit and platform will stand while at the west end the church parlors and class rooms will be located and cut off from the main audience room with folding doors that may be closed or opened as may be desired. On either side are [illegible] windows which are a part of the audience room and [illegible] its [illegible] classroom at the western end will be the gallery which will accommodate about seventy people. The windows are [illegible] to correspond with the finish of the interior woodwork [illegible]

[illegible] Rev [illegible] M [illegible] was looking at the building and he remarked

We got the plans for the building from the Church Extension Society of Philadelphia and are as near perfect as study and experience can make them and we have adhered to them. We did not expect to build so fine a church when we started in but the generous $2400 donation from Mrs Smith enabled us to build a basement and enlarge on first designs. The contract price was $2400 but the building when completed and furnished will cost about $4000. It is expected to dedicate the new church in about four weeks

You may say he continued that we expect to duplicate this structure on Adams street in East Portland before another year."

FINED TWENTY DOLLARS

Wednesday night Charles Morgan and James Gray got on to a street car a short distance south of the bridge across Sullivan's gulch. There was a lady on the car at the time and the two sat down beside her and addressed her in a familiar manner. She got up and took a seat on the other side of the car when they followed her. She then appealed to the driver for protection but he was only insulted for his pains. Finally Jackson an employe of the company came to the rescue and the two scoundrels were given a thumping they will not soon forget. The two worthies went across the river where they were arrested and brought before Recorder Llewellyn yesterday forenoon. They were fined $20 each in default of which they were sent to the county jail. Great credit is due Jackson and the driver for the sound drubbing they gave the two scoundrels

DEATH OF J H FARNSWORTH

J H Farnsworth an old and highly respected citizen of this city died yesterday morning in the Portland hospital after an illness of about one month. He has a family at Scappoose where they have been living on a place he recently bought while he and one of his sons have been stopping in Tibbetts addition. He was an honored citizen and one who will be missed by his friends. Services over his remains will be conducted in the Evangelical church at 9 A M to-day by Rev L S Fisher after which the body will be taken to Dayton for interment

TEACHERS INSTITUTES

Prof Wetzel county school superintendent has arranged to hold twelve teachers institutes which will embrace all the important points in the county. He will issue a circular shortly containing the programme or plan of the institutes. The first institute will be held at Mount Tabor in district No [illegible] This will be held October 20

[illegible] WILL MEET

The Harrison and Morton club and other republicans who take part in the grand parade to-night will meet in Hall & Stott's building at 7 o'clock. The East Portland band has been secured for the occasion

[illegible]

The board of equalization will finish up their work this week. As a result of their work the city will be $[illegible] better off. The increase of taxable property over last year will be over $[illegible]

GRAVELING [illegible] STREET

Russell street in Albina is being graveled with something that looks like coarse sand. It is said to mix with the mud and forms a kind of cement that hardens and makes a splendid road

[illegible]

Rev H K Hines has returned from Boise City

Mr E A Hacker arrived with his bride from the East yesterday

A H Black has got back from Albany where he has been for some time

G W Staver and family of this city left to-day for Illinois to be gone three months

"THE BARK DIRECTOR"

United States Circuit Court District of Oregon

October [illegible] 1888

The Director—Balfour Guthrie & Co Libelants

This case was heard on an appeal from the district court. The suit was brought to recover damages for the breach of a warranty of seaworthiness of the bark Director and to recover the possession of [illegible] bags of wheat heretofore delivered to the same for transportation to Liverpool under said warranty

A exception to the libel for [illegible] causes of action was overruled by the district court (13 Saw 425 Fed Rep [illegible]) and on the final hearing the court found that the [illegible] was unseaworthy and that the libellants [illegible] the possession of the wheat and to recover damages for the nonperformance of the contract of affreightment, which were a lien on the vessel (34 Fed Rep [illegible])

SAWYER C J

Three points are made by counsel for the claimants and appellants against the findings and decree of the lower court. (1) That the possession of the wheat and damages for the breach of warranty of seaworthiness cannot be recovered in one suit. (2) That the libellants having sold the cargo while it was in Liverpool cannot maintain a suit to recover possession of the same notwithstanding the repudiation of the sale and the return to the libellants of the bill of lading by the purchaser, and (3) The vessel was seaworthy at the date of the charter party or was made so before the expiration of the lay days

The first two of these points involve questions of law. Upon both reason and authority I think the libelants are entitled to join the cause of action for possession of the wheat with that for damages for the breach. They are also entitled as against the claimants to maintain the suit for the possession of the wheat. The sale in Liverpool has been repudiated by the purchaser and the bills of lading returned to the libelants. The fact that the libellant may [illegible] hold the purchaser liable in damages for such repudiation if the law will permit [illegible] does not affect their right to the possession of the wheat [illegible] against the claimants

On the question of seaworthiness I have read the testimony carefully and am satisfied that at the date of the charter party the Director contrary to the implied as well as the express warranty therein, was altogether unseaworthy and the subsequent repairs did not make her seaworthy for such a voyage and cargo. The mere fact that she only brought $3000 at the marshal's sale, after near $6000 of repairs had been made upon her, is itself satisfactory evidence of her inherent weakness, and that nothing [illegible] making her [illegible] her [illegible]

[illegible] district judge [illegible] of fact and law and for the reasons given in his opinion, to which I can add nothing

There must be a decree for the libellants accordingly

Mr C E S Wood for the libellants

Mr Frederick R Strong for the claimants

A VISIT TO THE SELKIRKS.

Capt Cleveland Rockwell's Return From These Noted Mountains With Various Sketches

Capt Cleveland Rockwell returned yesterday morning from a four weeks sojourn among the Selkirk mountains. Most of his time was occupied in taking sketches of the picturesque scenery for which those western slopes of the Rocky mountains are noted. With Banff as headquarters he made trips in all directions and took sketches of the [illegible] mountain ranges there stretching out before him

He speaks very enthusiastically of his trip and the places he visited among the mountains. Banff [illegible] for tourists and invalids from all parts of Canada and England. [illegible]

Taking advantage of the [illegible] the Canadian Pacific company have the [illegible] hotel [illegible] complete in all its appointments [illegible] within the limits of the Canadian national park which includes lakes Vermilion and Devil's Head and countless mountain streams. This place [illegible] artists. Game consisting of mountain sheep deer and bear is plenty [illegible] canyons [illegible]

To the artist Capt Rockwell says this country presents a rich field of labor. The country is more Alpine than on the western slope of the mountains. These are imposing mountain peaks massive glaciers beautiful canyons muddy rivers with dizzy falls clear sparkling mountain streams and a great many other such picturesque situations as prove the delight of every artist. Tourists stopping at the Summit house have but a short distance to the foot of the mammoth glaciers extending from the top of the mountains to the muddy rivers winding between the ranges

Mount McDonald a hoary sentinel shaped like an arrow head stands within sight of the Glacier house another hotel but a short distance from the hot springs. The Canadian Pacific Railroad Company has offered $100 to anyone who will plant a flag on the summit of this mountain. This does not seem to be much of an inducement, for no one has yet attempted the perilous feat

Bell Smith of Ontario and Mrs O Brien of Toronto two noted Canadian artists had just left Banff a short time before Capt Rockwell arrived there. As a result of his labors Capt Rockwell returns with a large number of sketches. He has about fifteen or twenty taken at and about Glacier and about ten taken in the vicinity of Banff. In fact, he says he was so busy sketching that he did not even have time to do any fishing

Speaking of the developments and improvements in that territory Capt Rockwell said that the country is opening up rapidly. Travel on the railroad is brisk. There is considerable prospecting done and several new mines have lately been opened. An English mining company is building a large smelter at Vancouver and thither the heavy output of galena from Mt. Stevens will be taken. Gold and silver mines in the Illicillwaet range of the Western slope of the Selkirks are being opened but as but little capital is expended the developments are very slow

An English Canadian syndicate is talking of building a branch road from near Hope toward Seattle. Should these talks lead to some action being taken in that direction it will be a wonderful help to that country as about the only thing the country now lacks is proper railroad communication with the commercial centers of the coast

CARGO OF THE "NITH."

United States Circuit Court District of Oregon

Tuesday October [illegible] 1888

[illegible] Bark Nith Thompson & DeHart Libelants

This case was heard on an appeal from the district court. The suit was brought to recover damages for the nonperformance of a contract of affreightment [illegible] a cargo of Swedish iron [illegible] on the bark Nith from Liverpool

When the goods were discharged at this port, they were found to be badly rusted from contact with salt water and the libelants refused to receive them and brought this suit for damages. The district court found for the libelants (Fed Rep [illegible]) and gave them a decree for $[illegible] the value of the goods at this port with legal interest from the date of arrival, with costs and disbursements. From this decree the claimant appealed

Three points are made here by counsel for the claimant on the appeal against the findings and decree of the district court. (1) The iron was damaged with rust from contact with sea water when it was received on board the Nith. (2) The iron and anvils were properly stowed under the salt with the crates of earthenware between them and (3) The break in the mast coat by which the sea water went into the hold and caused the iron and anvils to rust, was a peril of the sea for which the vessel is not liable

On a careful examination of the evidence in the case I am satisfied that the iron and anvils were in good condition when shipped on the Nith that it was not good storage to place salt over the iron and anvils, as was done in this case, even with the crates of crockery between them, and that it was clearly bad storage to place the salt crates and iron within an inch or so of the mast. Admitting that the rent in the mast coat was a peril of the sea had it not been for this bad storage no harm would have resulted to the cargo as the water would have run down the side of the mast to the bottom of the vessel. A peril of the sea does not excuse the carrier from a loss or injury to the goods committed to his care if his own negligence or want of skill has contributed to the result. The cargo and particularly the salt should have been dunnaged away from the mast so the water flowing down the same would not have affected it

In conclusion I adopt the findings of the district judge both of fact and law for the reasons given in his opinion to which I can add nothing

There must be a decree for the libellants accordingly

Mr Edward N Deady for the libellants

Mr C E S Wood for the claimant

OVERWHELMING PROOF

Of the Superiority of Electricity in the Cure of Diseases by Dr Darrin.

Who Can Doubt When So Many of Our Citizens Testify?

So much has been said in praise of Drs Darrin and their new method of cure by electric treatment that it seems useless to add further proof. Still we had occasion to meet the most of the following named people and from their own lips find their cures to be genuine and that no exaggeration of their cases occur

In the main Drs Darrin use electricity and animal magnetism applied or imparted by their own hands to the diseased members by rubbing or manipulations. They do not, however rely wholly upon this as they use medicines in special cases. Some people who have [illegible] treatment pronounce them great humbugs while hundreds of others speak of them in terms of the highest praise. What physicians are there of any note or prestige against whom there will be no such denunciations. Dr Darrin do not pretend to [illegible] they cure everything and everybody that comes but we know that multitudes have been greatly benefited or permanently cured by their treatment. The fact that their office is crowded the greater part of the time and that so few go away dissatisfied is pretty good evidence of their success. We would not knowingly puff up a fraud either as a physician or otherwise, but facts seen with your own eyes cannot be controverted

A Loathsome Catarrh Cured

Dr Darrin Dear Sir — July 3 I came to you for treatment for a disagreeable case of catarrh of over [illegible] years standing. My head and throat was thoroughly diseased and it had deranged my stomach and bronchial tubes to that degree that I was partially incapacitated to do my work. Many things in the way of patent medicines I had tried to no avail. You cured me in two months with home treatment and I do not begrudge the $[illegible] I paid you. I refer people to me at Salem Or F ANDERSON

TRUSTS AND THEIR SUPPORTERS.

Mr. Blaine has made another speech on trusts. This speech the democratic organs will not like, and certainly they will not quote from it. It is a notorious fact that the great trusts of the country are in democratic hands, and it is not doubted that many of them, if not all, are putting heavy sums into the Cleveland corruption fund. The sugar trust, the oil trust, the whisky trust and the coal trust are the greatest and most oppressive of these combinations. It may be taken for certain that Blaine's speech, in denouncing the existing trusts with the implication of the democratic party, and designating by name the men who are at the head of them, will create a great deal of discomfort in democratic circles. His observation that the "stop thief" cry is not entirely confined to the criminal classes, but that it is a common part of the tricks known in political circles, and is especially noticeable in the present course of the democratic party respecting trusts, fits too closely to be worn with comfort, and there will be an outcry about it.

Before us is a democratic paper which has an article on the exactions of the sugar trust. It introduces the subject with the remark that the trust is a tariff bred monopoly. But this journal, like all other [illegible], fails to get hold of the important fact that the senate tariff bill is directed especially against this trust, by proposing a reduction of the duty on sugar and the principle that will let in at a very low duty sugar already fit for use without passing through the refiner's hands. The sugar trust is a refiners' ring, and its power is based largely on a system of classification of sugars for assessment of duties that taxes the lower grades of the article in higher proportion than the refined grades. This advantage to the refiners the Mills bill would increase. It was for that object that Havemeyer, head of the great sugar ring, and a well known and active democrat of New York, went before the Mills committee, where he got the bill fixed to his liking.

The fact that the colossal trusts of the country are in democratic hands is so notorious that the cry of "stop thief" from that party can hardly be called a really clever expedient.

A PATRIOT'S MEMORY.

The veterans of the First corps of the Army of the Potomac have decided to erect a monument in Washington to Gen. James S. Wadsworth, who commanded a division of the First corps at Gettysburg and was killed at the battle of the Wilderness, May 6, 1864. Gen. Wadsworth when the war broke out was among the first citizens of the empire state in point of vast landed wealth, ability and purity of character. He spent his money like water for the cause in the early months of the rebellion, chartering vessels and sending them with supplies to Annapolis, serving on McDowell's staff at Bull Run, and finally dying at the head of his command, and yet so strong was the anti war feeling in New York state after the terrible failure of McClellan at the East and Buell at the West that this eminent patriot in November 1862 was beaten for governor by Horatio Seymour.

Nothing more forcibly illustrates the popular mood of despair and discontent with the conduct of the war in the autumn of 1862 than the defeat of so able, so gallant and popular a citizen as Gen. Wadsworth. This mood of despair grew so black after Burnside's awful repulse at Fredericksburg, a month later, that Gen. Hooker and other officers of the Army of the Potomac ventured to talk openly about the necessity of a dictator, but Lincoln put his foot down and silenced them. The people rallied to Lincoln's side with new courage, which lasted them until Gettysburg and Vicksburg broke the darkness of defeat with the splendid light of dawning victory that at last became perfect day.

Wadsworth was educated at both Harvard and Yale, studied law in the office of Daniel Webster, but never practiced, devoting himself to the management of his vast patrimonial estates in Western New York. His wealth was represented by several millions of dollars, and he was undoubtedly the richest man who personally bore arms on either side during the civil war. It is a further attestation of his unselfish patriotism that he was long past those years that fall within the usual period of military service. No man ever laid upon the altar of his country a sacrifice greater than that freely offered by James S. Wadsworth. And in those last years Grover Cleveland was obstructing as far as he could the cause for which Wadsworth offered his fortune and gave his life, and in the same year that Wadsworth fell Cleveland voted for a platform that declared the war a failure and demanded surrender to the rebellion.

HE RISES TO EXPLAIN.

Senator Vest of Missouri not long since wrote to a political friend in his state that the fight against protection upon which the democratic party had entered was to be a fight of extermination—a fight to the death. President Cleveland, he said, had boldly entered upon this contest and he honored him for it. The man to whom the letter was written, in his ardor and zeal for the cause, gave it to the [illegible] publication. The letter has often been printed in the newspapers, and yesterday it was read in the senate. Vest [illegible]. He said that if he had known that the letter was going to be published he would not have written it in that form. He would have drawn it up in a style of equivocation, so that he might have been able to deny his real sentiments and the real purposes of his party. Here is an incident that shows forth in a striking manner the dishonesty of the democratic party in its professions in regard to the tariff. Bitterly hostile to the principle of protection and seeking its overthrow, it denies with astonishing hardihood that such is its purpose, but in their [illegible] to their friends not intended for the public the leading democrats of the country frankly avow their purpose and urge their followers to accomplish it. It is still freshly remembered that [illegible] democrat was accustomed to profess his ardent devotion to the Union, though he [illegible] the plans and purposes of secession all the same. Now every free trade democrat wants to make it appear that he is not an enemy of protection, though he is doing his best to destroy protection, and in private frankly avows his purpose to do that thing. Senator Vest in that private letter [illegible] to tell [illegible] down his own sentiments and the intentions of his party, and honesty would require him to stand up boldly and defend them. It is a most pitiful excuse to say that his real sentiments would not have been written had he known the letter was going to the public. Some explanations don't explain. This one does.

MOODY.

Those who do not appear to know the difference between sane methods applied to religious revivalism and insane and pernicious methods ought to go and hear Mr. Moody. The distance between Mr. Moody's theory of religious revivalism and that of the Salvation army is about as wide as the distance between the scientific treatment of Bellevue hospital and the pow wow of an Indian "medicine man." Mr. Moody, because he treats religion reverently, calmly, quietly, as a healthy minded, honest, sincere evangelist always does, achieves a great deal of good, for he leaves those who seek his help saner, better and more sincerely happy persons than he found them, while under the ministrations of the Salvation Army religion is dragged in the dirt and fairly whipped at the cart's tail to amuse the vulgar, to upset the sane equanimity of the weak and foolish, and to support an asylum for pious frauds whose vicissitudes of piety and depravity are worthy of no more respect than the good behavior of a tramp who, when cold and hungry, will simulate sobriety and pretend to have fallen in love with a life of virtuous industry in order to hibernate comfortably when the weather is too severe to permit him to poach his living.

Mr. Moody is a wonderful example of the permanent and increasing influence of a preacher who brings nothing into the pulpit but an absolutely pure, simple, sincere purpose to do all the good he can whenever and wherever he can, as long as he can. He is [illegible] destitute of affectation in his manner or his matter, absolutely free from irreverent sensationalism or intolerance of spirit. He has no tricks of literary expression [illegible] climaxes of speech. His speech is strong through its absolute simplicity, unsurpassed earnestness and sincerity. His greatest quality, on which rests his permanent power to compel success, is the impression of absolute sincerity that quietly but completely sinks self in the cause he seeks on all his hearers. If the Salvation Army is a bane, how great a boon and a blessing is Mr. Moody! That the Salvation Army has survived such an exhibition of reverent revivalism as that of Mr. Moody is only proof that the dissolute and hopeless heathen enjoy the Salvation Army, not for its religion, but for its rank flavor of barbaric paganism.

The soundness of Mr. Moody's methods is attested by the fact that since the days of John Wesley it may be doubted whether any revivalist has exercised so permanent an influence upon his hearers. The old style of revivalists like Burchard and Maffit created a deal of excitement, but it soon burnt itself out. It was an assault upon the nervous temperament; if the convert was healthy and strong he generally lost his religion when he regained control of his nerves; if he was weak and foolish he generally became a maniac or a pious imbecile. Moody is of strong, healthy, sound physique, his mind is calm, clear, vigorous, his spirit and purpose sweet, sane, sincere, and above all he is tremendously in earnest. He does not always do all the good he desires, but he never does any harm, which is something that can be said with truth of comparatively few persons who attempt to be religious revivalists.

DEATH OF OSCAR I. CLAY.

After a severe illness of heart disease, lasting fifteen weeks, Mr. Oscar I. Clay, commercial editor of THE OREGONIAN, died yesterday forenoon at 10 o'clock at the residence of his parents on Eleventh and Market streets.

In his death a life of great usefulness and a career of singular promise have been broken. Mr. Clay was born in Massillon, Stark county, Ohio, June 18, 1858, and when yet an infant his parents moved to Oregon. Here his boyhood was passed and here he early exhibited those qualities which have since endeared his memory to an extensive acquaintanceship and a wide circle of friends. Indeed it may be doubted if there is another person of similar years within the city who is more widely and favorably known.

Oscar was a member of the first class that was graduated from the Portland High school, but his desire to participate in the battle of life induced him to leave school before completing the course of study. Yet he was not content to consider his education complete, and the intervening years have been largely devoted to constant and judicious reading.

In the spring of 188[illegible] he entered upon the duties of commercial editor of THE OREGONIAN, a position of great responsibility, and it is a source of pleasure to the management of this paper to say that the work could not have been performed better, and to add the remarkable statement that in all these years it has never received a complaint against the absolute correctness and fairness of its commercial column, either from the public or the merchants of the city.

Mr. Clay's characteristics of modesty and courtesy, supplemented by a proper degree of firmness and self reliance, are too well known to his numerous friends to require more than passing mention here. These qualities shone all the brighter during his long and trying illness, fifteen weeks of which were passed upon the couch of death. They who watched by his side during that long illness frequently commented upon the fact that he never made complaint nor gave way to vain repinings. And while realizing the grave nature of his ailment and knowing well that death might come at any hour, he never abandoned hope and never lost interest in the busy world and the cares and duties of his friends.

Indeed there was much of heroic fortitude in this young man's gallant struggle with death, much that might well serve as a model to the youth of this city. For his friends he always had a smile of welcome, even when his wasted heart was angrily beating its prison bars and the exertion of speech was denied him.

There is not a member of THE OREGONIAN staff to-day, and nearly all have been intimately associated with him during the past five years, who does not mourn his death as that of a brother. It would have been a pleasure at any time during his life for his fellow laborers to have spoken words of praise for his ability as a journalist, his faithfulness to his duties, his goodness of heart and his true nobility of character, and it is with sincere sorrow, which cannot be expressed in words, that they will take leave of all that was mortal of their friend, and with heavy hearts turn again to the dull plodding of this work-a-day world. To his parents, sisters and brothers in their bereavement the most heartfelt sympathy is extended by his associates upon this journal.

Calm he looked on either life, and here
[illegible] Nought to regret or [illegible]
From Nature's temperate feast rose satisfied,
Thanked Heaven that he had lived, and that he died.

Mr. Clay was a prominent member of the Knights of Pythias, and his funeral will be conducted under the auspices of that order. He was past chancellor of Castle lodge No. 13, district deputy grand chancellor, and before his serious illness had been elected delegate to the grand lodge, now in session in this city.

The funeral will be held at the family residence at 9 A. M. on Saturday. Rev. Dr. Kummer of the Taylor street Methodist church will conduct the services. Then the uniformed rank of the Knights of Pythias will carry the remains to their last resting place in Riverview cemetery, and will conduct the impressive exercises of their order at the grave.

Eastern papers say that Henry Villard has announced himself a supporter of Cleveland, basing his reasons on the ground that he desires free trade and that the position Cleveland has taken is satisfactory to him. As a railroad operator Mr. Villard no doubt would be glad to get rails free of duty, and since his relations with Europe are very intimate there are reasons why he would naturally be glad of the opportunity to bring over from European countries what he wants for business or for living in America, since nearly all things are cheaper there. But the working people of this country think it better to produce as much as possible here. If the interests of our own working people are not kept in view as a primary object, free trade undoubtedly is just the thing. As Grover Cleveland said in 1885, while he was still a protectionist: "The stability and proper remuneration of American labor furnish the most justifiable pretext for a protective policy."

THE SPOILS SYSTEM.

The report of the special committee of the senate appointed to investigate the present condition of the civil service officially confirms what has been unofficially established long ago, namely, that President Cleveland is a shameless violator of all the pledges he made in his letter of acceptance, his letter to George Wm. Curtis, his inaugural address, his first annual message and his letter of September 11, 1885, to Commissioner Eaton, condemnatory of the spoils system. This official exposure will not hurt him with his party, for it is the pressure of his party and his own anxiety to be re-elected that have made him false to his promises; nor will it hurt him with many mugwumps, for the majority of the mugwumps were from the start nothing but republican free traders wearing the mask of civil service reform. The most shameless act of the president the committee do not touch upon, viz., his letter of last November urging the election of District Attorney Fellows in New York city, an ex-Confederate carpet bagger from Arkansas, whose career had been so corrupt that the New York Times and New York Post (Cleveland organs) both refused to support him for election and denounced the president for his letter. But free trade is dearer to those journals than civil service reform, so they are both in line for Cleveland.

The criticism to be passed upon the president is not that he does not believe in civil service reform, but that in order to get votes in 1884 he pretended to believe it and then ruthlessly betrayed it. The origin of the spoils system has been attributed to Jackson when really it was first introduced into American politics by a scarcely less notorious democrat, Aaron Burr, whose returning board counted out John Jay for governor of New York in 1792, and who in 1800 after the democrats were victorious in New York introduced for the first time the spoils system in all its vigor into the politics of the empire state, imitating the bad example of Pennsylvania a year or two previously. Jefferson did turn out some good officers to make room for the unworthy. Even Jackson's removals were in no sense a wholesale proscription such as we find under Cleveland to-day. In Jackson's first year there were removed but 690 officers through the whole United States for all causes, of whom 491 were postmasters, the entire number of postmasters then being nearly 8000. In the city of Washington but one out of seven officers was removed; in the postoffice department the removals were but one out of sixteen, and in the whole government but one out of eleven. Benton says that in the departments at Washington a majority of the employes were opposed to Jackson throughout his administration. Of officers having a judicial function, such as land and claims commissioners, territorial judges and justices in the District of Columbia, none were removed. Van Buren, as secretary of state, removed but four out of seventeen foreign representatives. Benton declares that Van Buren's temper and judgment were both against the system of official proscription that he was falsely charged with introducing into politics, and that he gave so many ample proofs of his forbearance that Webster, in his celebrated efforts to secure the rejection of Van Buren's appointment as minister to England, did not touch upon this objection. Benton, though friendly to Jackson, condemned the system of removals, so the fairness of his statement may be safely trusted.

In 1840 Samuel McKean, senator from Pennsylvania, wrote a letter to Amos Kendall, Van Buren's postmaster general, complaining that three employes of the postoffice had used their time and influence to affect elections, though admitting that since Kendall had become postmaster general he had given no cause of complaint. Kendall replied that he had always advised the members of his department to shun more political meetings, to avoid taking part in their proceedings and to decline acting as members of political committees or conventions. He added that while in making appointments he would prefer political friends, he would not remove a good postmaster and an honest man for a mere difference of political opinion. It is clear therefore that Cleveland's system of political proscription, which he has enforced in face of his pledges to the cause of civil service reform, has been so wholesale compared with that practiced under Jackson and Van Buren that to-day Jackson seems like a civil service reformer by the side of Cleveland.

The democratic partisans of Cleveland are prompt to defend him by charging that the worst, the most corrupting and most demoralizing official proscription that ever took place in America was enforced under President Lincoln in 1861. This answer is specious but unsound. Lincoln assumed office at the outset of a great war, and it was necessary that he should make "a clean sweep," because the whole official machinery of government was in the hands of democrats high and low, who were either known to be or justly suspected to be in full sympathy with the armed conspiracy to destroy the Union. The petty tide waiters and time servers of two abjectly pro-slavery administrations filled every federal office in the land. It was a stern military necessity to purge the administration of all these suspects, a necessity forced upon Lincoln by the fact that the office holding partisans of Pierce and Buchanan at the North were to the last moment of peace in full sympathy with the secession conspiracy at the South. At the outset of a great war Lincoln could not afford to leave the transportation of the mails or their delivery through the postoffices of the land in the hands of men on whose reputation for ardent loyalty there rested the slightest cloud of suspicion. He could not afford to leave any suspects in the treasury, in the custom houses and above all in the war or navy departments. He was obliged to make a clean sweep as a matter of military prudence and precaution, just as Gambetta felt obliged to make a clean sweep of all Napoleonists from the 600,000 offices of France when he erected the republic on the ruins of the second empire. Lincoln was entirely justified by the emergency of the warlike situation of May 1861 when this clean sweep began, and in few acts of his administration did he show more sagacity. As it was, some few secession sympathizers managed to conceal themselves in every department of the government and to the end of the war betrayed the secrets of the government to the Confederates. That Lincoln was no wholesale political proscriptionist is shown by the fact that hundreds of democrats were subsequently appointed to the coveted non-combatant places of paymasters, commissaries, quartermasters and department clerks. But in the start Lincoln was bound to make a besom of the American flag and with it wipe the civil service completely clean of all suspects, and every man who held office under an appointment from Pierce or Buchanan was justly regarded as a suspect, so the effort to justify Cleveland's wholesale proscription by Lincoln's clean sweep of May 1861 has not a leg to stand upon. With Lincoln it was not a partisan abuse of patronage; it was a necessity forced upon him by the extraordinary emergency of a civil war. But even if there had been no civil war Lincoln's act would not excuse Cleveland, for Lincoln had made neither public nor private, neither official or unofficial pledge of hostility to wholesale political proscription and loyalty to civil service reform.

Since the cable road franchise, which was granted a good while ago, requires that a portion of the road shall be completed by the end of the present year, and since this is now impracticable, there is good reason for extension of the time, and no doubt the common council will act favorably on the company's petition. But there should be some revision of the terms of the franchise in other particulars. The company should be required to complete the lines on all the streets granted it within a fixed time, say three or at most five years. There should be provisions requiring the streets to be kept in order along the lines and between the tracks, and a percentage charged upon the gross receipts should be paid into the city treasury. This last provision might be waived for a few years if thought best, but it should be inserted as a condition of the franchise, to take effect say in three to five years, by which time the business of the road will be well established. The city should not give away any more of these valuable franchises, but should have something for them. Though onerous terms should not be made, and though payments may not at present be enforced—in order to give new lines a chance to start—nevertheless the right to require such payments should be reserved, to take effect at some definite time.

Some weeks ago a statement appeared in THE OREGONIAN to the effect that Mr. Thurman had once said in the senate that "free immigration would be advantageous as furnishing a class of cheap and efficient laborers." The statement was reproduced by one of THE OREGONIAN'S writers from an Eastern journal. Its authenticity was questioned, but busy people have little disposition to spend their days turning over that dreary waste of speech, the Congressional Record, so we didn't endeavor to find out whether Thurman had ever made the statement or not. But small minds dwell much on trifling things, and several of the petty democratic organs of the state have been employed in lively pursuit of this matter, till now the Albany Democrat says it finds the statement was a garbled one, and quotes this from a speech made, as it says, in the senate by Mr. Thurman (Record, page 1 06, vol. 8, part 2, 3d session of 45th congress):

Their (Chinese) presence in our country, although it might be advantageous as furnishing a set of cheap and efficient laborers, carries with it such disadvantages that they more than countervail all the benefits we could derive from their presence.

Since this has been hunted up we reproduce it because we want no erroneous statement that may appear in these columns to go uncorrected, even if the matter has no kind of importance. And this certainly has none in itself. There is nothing more in the so called "Chinese question" here or elsewhere, and Thurman is not singular in opposing the introduction of Chinese into the United States. There is now an absolute exclusion bill, which was passed through the senate by republican votes over strenuous efforts of the democratic senators to obstruct it.

An attempt to obtain natural gas at Cle Elum, in Washington territory, is being vigorously prosecuted. The boring has now reached a depth of a little over [illegible]00 feet. Even if gas is not obtained, the result of the boring will have proven that vast wealth in the shape of coal, which can be easily mined, lies beneath that town. When down a little over 400 feet a stratum of coal seven feet thick was struck. It is intended to keep on boring the gas well until a depth of 1000 feet is reached if a good flow of gas is not had before that. The company engaged in this enterprise is wealthy and has spent upwards of $10,000 already, including the work and cost of machinery.

Numerous towns in Eastern Oregon are erecting water works, or organizing for the construction of such a necessity. Milton has just completed an excellent system, while Weston, Baker City, Heppner and other places are making arrangements to do the same. The reduction of insurance rapidly pays for such protection from fire, and one big fire in the absence of water works can in two hours destroy property enough, had it been saved, to have paid several times over for the protection suggested.

Candor will never be the betrayer of the Albany Democrat. That paper holds that the resolve of its party in 1886 that "as a matter of justice the wool growing interests of the country should receive the same benefits from a tariff as the manufacturers of woolen goods" is perfectly fulfilled by the Mills bill, which puts wool on the free list and protects manufacturers to the extent of 40 per cent.

The republican bill for reduction of the duties will hurt nobody but the members of the sugar trust.

Nervous, Tired Women Cured by Food.

Nervous exhaustion comes from malnutrition of the nerves. A noted scientist has discovered that the albumen which feeds the nerves is not fully digested to the consistence of water it cannot be absorbed by them hence starvation and exhaustion. Consequently they are nourished only in proportion to the ability of the stomach to prepare their food which is the most difficult of all the foods to digest as it must be perfectly done Not one stomach in five can prepare a sufficient quantity Hitherto artificial digestion has only been able to digest it fine enough for the blood which only circulates in the muscles and bones Three years ago this was overcome and as now made has cured a large number of cases of paralysis and cures the nervous and tired in a few hours. The preparation is sold at the druggists as Moxie Nerve Food for 50 cents a quart bottle. 23a3m

TALK WITH SERGEANT GLASS

The Cable at the Mouth of the Columbia—New Heliographs Coming

How does the government cable at the mouth of the Columbia work? was asked of Sergt Glass yesterday

The cable itself between Fort Stevens and Chinook point operates perfectly It is laid across at this point because the river is here the narrowest being only four miles wide The only trouble we experience in getting the Fort Canby reports is occasioned by breakages which seldom occur on the land wires between that point and Astoria and the more frequent occasions when the line is down between here and Astoria This happens in the winter as you know about every one day in four owing to the heavy winds and falling limbs of that time of year

I was over to Vancouver yesterday and Lieut. O Neill informed me that he is expecting some heliographs from the East and when they arrive we shall undoubtedly be able to establish heliographic communication between our hilltops and Vancouver The instruments coming are of a new and special manufacture said to embody the best features of all known heliographs I still have Lieut Swift's instrument here and have thought some of putting it upon exhibition at the Mechanics' fair and probably will in a day or two

Tickets will be on sale up to and including October 25 Parties going into the park should call on C S Hefferlin agent N P R R immediately on arrival at Livingston For full particulars inquire of your nearest agent or address A D Charlton assistant general passenger agent Portland, Or or Charles S Fee general passenger and ticket agent St Paul Minn

AUTOMATIC ENGINES

TACOMA, W T Feb. 25 1888.

Messrs Russell & Co Portland Oregon—Gentlemen We have been running the automatic engine bought of you for a week or more and so far we are much pleased with it. Our engineer says it is the best engine he ever run and he has had extensive experience in building and running engines. What he notices especially is its uniformity of action under varying load He tested it with his speed indicator and found there was no change in the number of revolutions when the dynamo was plugged in or cut out.

Wheat-Growing in Linn County—Spring and Fall Sowing

Discussion About Plowing—Diversified Farming—Farming in Idaho—Stock Breeding—Chickens and Eggs—Shoeing Horses

Last winter much fall sown wheat was frozen out on prairie lands in the valley and the weather being favorable many farmers immediately ran the cultivator over it and sowed it to [illegible]. How this turned off as a general thing we cannot say, but we know of one instance where [illegible] a first-rate crop. Mr A. S. Powell, who lives near Albany, had a piece of over forty acres sown to golden chaff wheat, considered a good standard winter grain. This froze out when the cold snap came in January, and [illegible] golden chaff will not stand cold weather [illegible] as well as other varieties. He [illegible] April and then replowed it and [illegible] spring wheat on it. To see how it would work he did not replow four acres but [illegible] with a disc harrow and sowed the [illegible] wheat. The forty acres [illegible] was plowed and [illegible] forty-six bushels to the acre while the four [illegible] harrowed in [illegible] [illegible]

His view of it is that the first plowing should be deep and turn all the foul stuff well under and then plow shallow in the spring and harrow in well and roll the land [illegible] Rolling wheat is an important part of its cultivation, especially when spring sown.

[illegible] WHEAT

[illegible] until a few years there were various winter wheats used for seed that have [illegible] their day and have disappeared. The only winter wheat that survives [illegible] the old white winter, or [illegible] wheat brought here from [illegible] Hudson's bay half a century ago. This still retains a hold on public favor and makes a good yield. The club wheats [illegible] out and no longer grown. The popular winter wheats now [illegible] are white winter, golden chaff (which and the Kinney wheat are both winter and spring grain), Martin Amber, Houghton, gold medal, Landreth and Kinney. Of these the Martin Amber proved the best for yield and gave the best satisfaction generally. The Martin amber is a new variety planted extensively this year for the first time. The Kinney wheat was introduced by the Kinneys at Salem mills many years ago and gives good satisfaction. [illegible] wheat will leave hull and [illegible] three cents a bushel for [illegible] reason. For years Salem mills gave the [illegible] price for it but have of late [illegible] three cents.

The spring wheats grown in Linn county are defiance, golden chaff, club and Kinney. [illegible] beautiful white spring variety was [illegible] this season that gave the best of satisfaction but Mr Powell did not recall its [illegible]. PLOW DEEP OR SHALLOW

A writer in [illegible] gives his experience in plowing land [illegible] [illegible] the depth the plow should go depends [illegible] character of the soil [illegible]

[illegible]

Gardeners on ordinary prairie are [illegible] to plow deep and cultivate well. [illegible] ing is often a great advantage. So with all kinds of fruits. Grasses need to be on ground put in good order, plowed fairly deep and well rolled. Shallow plowing is only admissable on land where the soil is very shallow. Never plow good soil out of sight and leave barren subsoil on the surface. English gardeners, and Americans also, spade deep and trench the ground, but the scientific, or well-informed gardener, always leaves the surface soil on top and stirs and pulverizes the subsoil to secure moisture and enable it to absorb part of the manure that will leach down to it. Thus this subsoil becomes enriched and affords food for roots of plants that go down to it.

DIVERSIFIED FARMING

The Husbandman well says: "Every section of country has its main or principal production. In Minnesota and territories to the northward it is wheat; in parts of the Carolinas the main crop is cotton; in southern Virginia tobacco, on the Delaware peninsula it is peaches, and in western New York butter, cheese and live stock are the principal productions. This is caused by the various characteristics of soil, climates and markets, but it has been proved that there is hardly a section of country in the United States that will not produce from four to a dozen crops and productions. Diversified farming is the only successful system, especially in Northern and Eastern States where [illegible] storms, droughts [illegible] uncertain and diversity is safer [illegible] one crop.

This subject is [illegible] a very [illegible] proof is offered in the fact that at this time Southern farmers [illegible] because the cotton crop [illegible] failed in other sections and in New York State hops have been found an [illegible] failure. Had these people grown several other crops the loss of one would not have [illegible] the destruction of their hopes. In [illegible] these sections people will naturally make a special effort to produce the particular crop for which it is best adapted, but that [illegible] so that failure of one leaves them [illegible] recourse to tide over with and [illegible] disaster. While great states have their principal staples of production, different sections of each will possess peculiarities that [illegible] taken advantage of to make [illegible]."

There is a wide extent of the Pacific Northwest that is especially adapted to wheat growing, and the farmer can soon have a large area under cultivation. The great plains or uplands covered with bunch grass will invariably make good grain fields and bring fair rewards for labor, even at the low rates at which wheat has ruled. The [illegible] bunch grass lands are wonderful possibilities also. It is possible to grow there vegetables and fruits in abundance. Barley grows as well as wheat and many parts of the upper country produce flax. The man who imagines there is little capacity for diversified agriculture in the Inland Empire is not well informed.

The world does not stand still and the farming world rolls round as fast as the rest of the globe. Once the Western Oregon farmer thought wheat the only crop worth raising, and thought he had all the farming to do for the Pacific Far West. He waked up one day to find there was a farming country east of the Cascades. The farmer east of the mountains became a wheat grower and for a long time thought he must grow wheat or raise stock. Both found there were yet other things to do and that diversified agriculture was not only possible but profitable. To sum up the situation as experience presents it to day, there is no country or state that offers greater advantages for diversified agriculture than Western Oregon and Washington, and the Inland Empire will not be far behind.

FARMING IN IDAHO

Mr Chris W. Moore, a merchant of Boise City, who went from Oregon near Salem twenty-five years ago to Southern Idaho, was on a visit to his old home last week after nine years absence. He speaks very highly of his Idaho home and of the great capacity of the Boise valley to produce as a farming region. Mr Moore has a farm fifteen miles below Boise City in the heart of the Boise valley. He was brought up on a farm in his youth and takes kindly to that profession. Our Western Oregon people will be surprised to hear that he pronounces that country as being destined to become a famous fruit producing section. If this is so there is every inducement for settlers there to begin to plant orchards. They grow successfully all the fruits that do well in the Willamette, especially prunes. He has a bench that rises gradually towards the north from Boise river and sheltered by high hills from the north wind and dangerous frosts. He has an intention of planting orchard trees out on this land and irrigate them from the river. It seems that irrigation is considered essential there, but if they would underdrain and cultivate the land thoroughly they might find that such thorough cultivation would be sufficient to keep trees alive and make them grow without irrigation ditches. The soil of Boise valley is rich beyond question and there is valley land along the Weiser, Payette, Boise, Owyhee and in the Camas valleys and along other streams that can be made productive, though irrigation is considered requisite for success in any line of production. The sage plains are not always deserts, and in time will be developed into remarkable areas of production.

There must be wide districts that can be farmed and redeemed for that purpose from original growths of sage and greasewood. The demand for bread and meat and stock feed for the population engaged in mining is already large and increasing as the development of mining properties is accomplished. All that [illegible] north of there toward the [illegible] territory has [illegible] valleys [illegible] farming and grazing country. So far as these territories are developed and made available for [illegible] seekers they find better [illegible] than was anticipated and more inducement to plant homes. In the not remote future there will be such improvement and [illegible] progress as will redeem these mountain wilds from their isolation and solitude of the past and convert them into living and producing witnesses of what man is doing to convert natural wastes into a country fit for civilized habitations and cultivated homes.

STOCK BREEDING

Many persons fail to perceive the importance of pure blood and seem to imagine that cattle and horses are a natural growth and cannot be improved by anything man can do. But such reasoning is wide of the truth. Man improves stock by good management and by his own direct act. It is beyond the power of man to do aught to improve nature but by the effect of natural law and selection coupled with proper feed and care animals are bred into distinct families, and these different breeds are held up to the highest possible excellence. It is a pity the human race could not be made subject to as judicious treatment and achieve corresponding excellence. In a state of nature animals carry out the idea of the survival of the fittest. When buffalo roamed the plains, the strongest drove away the weakest. So with the African lion, only the most powerful were able to claim rights and privileges. To see what man and circumstances have accomplished look at the different breeds of domestic animals—the shetland pony and the Norman or Clyde draft horse, the Jersey cow and the great shorthorn, yet these represent the effect of circumstances.

We will suppose that the horse is of average degree of size and strength and varies [illegible] position. It takes time to effect great improvement, but by constant selection of the best and judiciously mating to secure results the average of excellence is improved, [illegible] gained in perfection of form in every respect and of strength and muscle is acquired. Also by careful selection of animals it is possible to secure animals with kind dispositions and superior intelligence. Feed and care does its part toward these results and by this means the different races of domestic animals kept in advanced position. The man who works these animals is not often in position to do this, therefore there are breeders who make it their life study to carry on this improvement. Among those there is healthy competition and honest rivalry for public confidence and support. It is simply new and perfect material all the time and so to say repair the waste and [illegible] want of care. Successful breeding is a science that has constant study [illegible] improvement. It is not mere blundering [illegible] but constant, careful effort, based [illegible] well tested principles.

[illegible] class of animal more success[illegible] swine. Here in Oregon [illegible] there were no good breeds of swine. [illegible] commenced to [illegible] and in a few years had built up a [illegible] superior to the common hog of the [illegible] have made many different breeds of sheep. Even fowls have been [illegible] by good breeding. The breeder performs an important part in human affairs and especially as it is the economy of farming. The farmer who is not also a stock raiser is not often found. He cannot afford the time, thought and labor, nor the money requisite for successful breeding, and yet he wants to secure the service of the best and these the breeder is prepared to furnish. Men often take pride in their stock. Their success is due to their good judgment in mating their breeding animals to good males.

VALUE OF GRADES

There are not many farmers who need thoroughbred stock for their own use. What the breeder needs is one thing and what the working farmer needs is another. Take the horse for instance. The large and well bred draft horse is only fitted to be the sire of good horses. Probably no true Clyde or Percheron can do as good work or last as long at it as one of his own get can bred from a common mare. The grade is generally better bone and muscle and made for work. Here is where the value of good blood comes in. Your common mare is good property, so is your grade mare, and as a general rule the grade has more stamina for work than the full blood. These are kept on a rich diet and well fed and somewhat pampered usually.

Use the value of a full blood male to the foal of a common mare and you have a work horse worth having, possessing endurance and often with good style and action. Your common mare generally has a solid bone and good substance while the great draft horse has a bone that is spongy in comparison and not half as close and firm. The grade comes in for the excellence of his parents and is serviceable, sizable, strong and docile. A good grade is all most men need. Unless he desires to breed his horse no farmer can afford to own a thoroughbred.

What is true of the horse is yet more true of cattle. The thoroughbred Jersey cow gives milk only a little better or richer or in greater quantity than a high grade. The same is true of all the dairy breeds of cattle. A farmer needs a good Jersey or Holstein bull and might have a few full blood cows to produce more full bloods from, but his herd of milkers need not be all gilt edged. Grades that are half are often excellent milkers and if they are not so can be discarded when a supply of higher grades is at hand. Very soon the herd improves and becomes higher in grade. Breed good milkers among common cows to a full blood Jersey or Holstein and the first heifer calf is very sure to make a good cow.

The same result of excellence may be expected from breeding for beef. Turn short horn bulls with a herd on the range and the grade steer becomes good beef. The difference in improvement is readily seen, for the fact is "blood will tell." Soon the herd becomes a herd of good grades. The man who uses common scrub bulls when he can get one of the best beef making breeds throws away his time and means. Take the whole range of domestic animals and they can be improved at slight cost so as to make a great difference in the profit. It is not always necessary or even advisable to use expensive animals. The man unable to afford it can afford to purchase or hire animals graded up to near true blood and that will be of great value to his stock. Take these well graded animals until you can afford better and they will earn the money to buy the others with.

CHICKENS AND EGGS

In no respect has there been greater improvement effected among animals in the last twenty years than in connection with our barnyard fowls. It seems when the improvement effected is realized as if human ingenuity has been taxed to the utmost to produce the beautiful and useful breeds that we now see in every direction. Some are of immense size, some are excellent eating, some lay a great number of eggs, the eggs of some are extra large, and of some the hens are excellent mothers. All these peculiarities are the result of especial effort and men have used as much discretion in producing these results as other men have shown in building up distinct families of horses or cattle. From the dainty little bantams to the burly cochins or brahmas is a wide interval, filled up with many varieties all possessing excellence. Here is a field that woman should fill and devote herself to filling it well. While the men are handling larger stock she should have her stands of honey and her flock of fowls. It would do no harm to experiment with turkeys, geese and ducks for a variety, especially if there is water for the ducks and geese. Poultry raising requires as much attention as raising larger animals and pays as much profit. The wife will often make a handsome profit on the chickens and eggs, and should have the spending of the money. If she would really become interested in the business and study the different breeds and their peculiarities it would afford much interest as well as some profit. To be successful in raising chickens is something to be proud of and to be able to show a clear profit by them is a just matter for pride. Poultry have many enemies, but not many diseases here in Oregon. To learn how to keep them free of vermin and to do it will require labor and study. What feed they do best on is another thing the wife who keeps them must learn. How to make them lay and how to not have them set are important points. There are different ways of keeping poultry and the way you want is the successful way—the one that keeps them laying and in good health. There is no small item of farm life that pays better. You should use eggs and chickens enough to pay the expense and sell $50 or $100 worth of eggs and poultry besides from an ordinary flock. To do this requires genuine ability, but is the work for a woman more than for a man.

Some people imagine that the old fashioned barnyard fowl is good enough and hesitate to pay a dollar for a setting of eggs of some better breed. The best breed pays the best and you raise chickens for the pay there is in it. Some one says the climate of California does not suit chickens, probably because they can't crow as loud as the men do. Anyhow they say they are small and inferior there. They are large and fine enough here and we ought to raise enough for home needs. If you want to succeed at it study all the different breeds and make up your mind which you like best, then try to keep them so they will be a source of profit. Don't forget the testimony of all who succeed is that it pays well to keep chickens.

SHOEING HORSES

We continually read and hear about the advantage of letting a horse's feet alone and not having it shod, but educate a team to travel through all the seasons and over all roads without shoes on their feet. This is nice talk, generally flavored with a picture of the happiness a horse enjoys that has no shoes to carry. So said a farmer last week and wound up with the remark: "I have two pairs of mules that explain the whole matter to me as plain as day." When he was induced to go on and say what his mules knew about shoes he said: "One pair of mules were shod, and of course they made no complaint. The other pair were not shod at all and they proved whatever side to be right you wanted to make a case for." Then he deliberately took a chaw of tobacco and worked away at that awhile, but seeing his company was waiting for the ninth story he continued: "One of those mules ran all summer on a graveled road and never had any trouble with his feet. His hoofs were sound as a nut when the fall rains came, and if he is not a tough one it is not because he doesn't keep his heels in motion one way or another. The other one, well, he was a tenderfoot sure enough. The first day he seemed unable to hoof it and I put him in the pasture instead of in the harness and we worked the brown mule with sound hoofs and one of the shod ones together until fall was nearly over and the road work done." Seeing a boy paying intense attention he wound up thus: "You see, sonny, its all in the mule and the sort of hoof he carries about with him. Some of 'em wear their hoofs out and some don't. If you happen to get a mule or horse with hoofs that won't wear out you're in amazing big luck."

The farmer's mules have their parallels in every breed of horses. Now and then you come across one that is so sound of hoof that gravel will not phaze it, but others again are apt to be tender and must be shod to be of any available service. A mule doesn't differ much from a horse, save that the mule team is always lightest, but its feet are much smaller, and therefore more liable to wear. The team that was shod had no cause for complaint, and so far as they were concerned the problem is unsolved. The chances are that by wearing shoes their feet have been more or less injured and hoof bound, a natural result of constant shoeing with many American horses being an unnatural contraction of the hoof.

PURE DAIRY SALT

Prof. L. B. Arnold, now deceased, was the best American dairy authority, and before his death a short time he read a report concerning the purity of the Higgins' Salt Works in Chesher, England, to learn for himself if there was anything in the claim made of special excellence. His conclusion was that that was a "clean, pure and honest-made salt, as good for dairy purposes as any salt ever offered to the public." Higgins uses his own invented process for securing freedom from pan scales. No other maker of salt has a process that accomplishes the same result, as he has letters patent for his invention. This Eureka salt stands first among American and English dairy salts and is endorsed for dairy use by the leading authorities on dairy matters throughout the United States.

ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL NIGHT

Large Attendance at the Mechanics' Fair—Much Interest—Fine Music

"Still a drawing card" is the verdict that suggests itself to one strolling through the pavilion last night. The attendance increases from day to day.

Last night the crowd was larger than on any other day since the opening with the exception of Saturday, which naturally always is the liveliest day in the week.

The attendance is also much larger than it was on the corresponding days last year.

Strangers and country people are coming in in larger numbers. Everything works smoothly without jar or hitch.

There are still a few exhibits being put in place by those who could not get them here sooner. In the agricultural department especially several additions have lately been made.

About 150 varieties of grasses arrived yesterday from Lane county. This makes quite an important and noticeable feature of this county's display.

The art gallery as a center of attraction is always filled with a gay, chatting throng of lovers of the good and beautiful.

The excellence of the music is remarked by all, and many while away a happy half hour in the [illegible] listening to the sweet notes from the many voiced instruments.

The presidential election is progressing finely. It is estimated that about six thousand have given their preferences for the presidential candidate of the coming [illegible]. This is not to [illegible] the attendance, for it must be understood that there are a good many young [illegible] who attended as well and these are never expected to have any preferences until after the result of an election is known. Taking it altogether last night was as pleasant a night and as successful a night (financially) as any since the opening.

CHILDREN'S DAY

All children under 12 years of age will be admitted to the Mechanics' fair Saturday (to morrow) afternoon for 10 cents.

SPECIAL EXHIBITS

IN MACHINERY HALL

The Frank Brothers Implement Company exhibits the Walter A. Wood's binder and mower, McSherry shoe drill, Havana press and drill, gang, sulky and walking plows. There is nothing in the market that surpasses this machinery and farm implements. The McSherry seeders are carefully made in every particular and are adapted to every section of country. Each seeder is confidently guaranteed as the best and fullest value for the money that can be attained and are to day recognized as the standard of excellence.

KNAPP, BURRELL & CO.

Knapp, Burrell & Co., the oldest agricultural house in the Northwest, make their usual interesting and complete exhibit. This reliable firm have the best line of farm machinery and implements on the coast. It is needless to remind old residents of the immensity and variety of their stock, but as the country is rapidly filling up with new comers, it is possible that good may result from mentioning the fact that they have the largest stock of agricultural implements, farm and spring wagons, buggies, carriages, milling and wood working machinery, farming tools, etc., in the Northwest.

STILL AN ATTRACTION

Russell & Co.'s exhibit still proves a great attraction to manufacturers and others who have use for engines. It seems that Russell & Co.'s single valve automatic engine has proved a wonderful success and people from all over the Northwest are taking advantage of their visit to the fair to learn everything they can of its workings. It is one of the interesting features in the east end of machinery hall.

[illegible] & CO.

Clothiers in Union block, between Stark and Oak, continue to sell the best men and boys clothing at the lowest prices.

WHY ABSENT

We note the absence from the fair this season of Olds & Summers. This is to be regretted because they always make such a handsome exhibit. They were too busy at their splendidly stocked store to give the required attention to a fair display, but the people will find them at 183 First street, where they have the finest stock of crockery and glassware in the city.

J. C. BAYER'S

Exhibit of galvanized iron cornices and corrugated iron roofing claims much attention from property owners and builders.

U. S. BREWERY

The U. S. Brewery display in the west end of the main hall shows well for a large home industry. The U. S. beer ranks with the best on the coast and is [illegible] growing in popularity in the Northwest.

THE ART GALLERY

More attention is devoted on the art gallery than was ever accorded it before. J. T. Pickett's masterpiece, "Morning on Puget Sound," is among the works most highly complimented. His painting of Tacoma and its harbor is also a very fine thing.

FURNITURE

H. F. Gullixson & Co. have made a change in the draping of their display. The rich and rare curtains exhibited are the most beautiful we have ever seen.

Davies, the photographer, has without doubt the finest display of photographic work ever seen at the Mechanics' fair and the rapid strides this gentleman has made give him the foremost place in the Northwest. Gallery, corner First and Taylor, Portland, Or.

A COWBOY OFFERS A PROTEST

He Prefers the "Society of the Range, the Camp fire, and the Howling Wolf"

PORTLAND, Oct. 11, 1888.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

I am a cowboy, taking in the sights. I was at the Mechanics' fair last night and noticed there a tired out woman wearily dragging her way along the upper floors with a babe in her arms and two little ones trudging at her side looking for a resting place. At the same time I noticed along the closely ranked chairs half a dozen that were occupied by shawls, cloaks, etc., these chairs being made inaccessible by the owners of the articles. Is this your city style? Then give me the society of the range, the camp fire and the howling wolf.

BLUE MOUNTAIN.

Incidents such as the above may appear shocking to the tender sensibilities of a range cowboy, but if he would settle down in a city he would soon get used to them. He should see three or four women occupy the whole side of a street car and never offer to move an inch to make room for other ladies entering. Or, he should attend a matinee performance at the theater when there is something attractive on the boards and witness the unconcern for the comfort or convenience of others manifested by the ladies generally. Oh no, the range style does not prevail in the city, and if Mr. Blue Mountain prefers the camp fire and the howling wolf to being crushed, smashed and smothered by the cattle of the city, why he must pay his money and take his choice.

A Pure, Healthy Beer

There is no question but that Weinhard's beer is about as pure a beverage as can be made. The greatest care is taken to prevent any material of second grade being used in its manufacture. Every ingredient used is carefully inspected and tested, and if it is not up to the full standard grade of excellence it is rejected. This care and foresight have repaid Mr. Weinhard, because the purity, healthfulness and flavor of the beer is due to the fine materials used in its make. People in the city from the interior to attend the Mechanics' fair should test the excellence of Weinhard's famous beer before they return.

DR. HATFIELD'S VIEWS.

A Stalwart Letter From a Leading Methodist Preacher

Reasons Given at Length for Supporting the Republican Party—Unsavory Reputation of the Democratic Candidate—Wrong Tariff Ideas

Rev. Robert M. Hatfield, D. D., in Globe-Statesman.

In considering the present political situation we do well to remember that there are but two bona fide presidential candidates in the field. It is true that Gen. Fisk, Belva Lockwood and others are named in connection with the high office, and it is the conceded right of every American citizen (if white and living in a Northern state) to vote for whomever he will in the approaching presidential election. He may deposit his ballot for Gen. Fisk, Mrs. Lockwood, George Francis Train or Mrs. Grundy, but if he is possessed of average intelligence he can have no hope that his candidate will be elected. His vote will be of no consequence except as it may help or hinder one of the two great political parties into which our country is divided. As a life long radical republican, I do not propose to throw away my vote or cast it where it will stand aid and comfort to the democratic party. I cannot support this democratic party for the following and other reasons:

First. Their candidate for the presidency has an unsavory reputation. We are told, I know, that we have nothing to do with the moral character of a candidate, and that all personalities are to be excluded from political discussions. From this I utterly dissent. The doctrine may be a convenient one for rogues and libertines who sneer at virtue and make light of the vices that destroy domestic peace and social order. But when a candidate solicits the suffrages of a virtuous people the first question to be asked is, "What is his moral character?" It is not to the credit of this country that Grover Cleveland was elected president four years ago. His re-election at this time would be little less than a national disgrace. I cannot support the democratic party for the further reason:

Second. That I believe its position on the tariff question to be wrong and antagonistic to the best interests of the country. I am aware that on the question of the tariff there is not perfect unanimity in the democratic party, but the party as a whole, with the president at its head, is hostile to a tariff for the protection of the industries of our country. On this question the party is English rather than American. Its policy if adopted must work a general derangement of business and in time reduce the workingmen of our country to a level with the poverty stricken laborers of the old world. The tariff may and probably does need revision, but this revision should be made by friends who desire its improvement, not by enemies who are bent on its destruction. A more serious objection to the democratic party is found in the fact:

Third—That it sympathizes with and encourages the men who for four years fought to destroy the nation, and who to day are doing their utmost to secure by other means what they failed to obtain by war. These efforts have been largely successful, as the colored citizens of the South know to their cost. I have known the democratic party for forty years as the pro slavery and whisky party. It plunged the nation into a war with Mexico to extend the area of slavery. It exerted all its power to force the accursed institution upon Kansas. During all the war for the preservation of the Union its sympathies were largely with traitors and rebels. It denounced Lincoln, discouraged enlistments and stigmatized Union soldiers as hirelings and dogs. In a national convention held in Chicago in 1864 it declared the war a failure and demanded peace on such terms as Jeff Davis would accept, and it is the same old party still. The Ethiopian has not changed his skin or the leopard its spots. It encourages the former slaveholders in robbing the colored citizens of the South of rights as dear to freemen as life itself. The Butlers and Hamptons and others of that ilk have disfranchised the hundreds of thousands of colored voters in the South. Every important election is controlled by violence or fraud and the president and his party know it is so and profit by these gigantic crimes. There are at this time more than a score of members of congress who have no more right to the seats they occupy than they have to a place in the English house of lords. If at the approaching election Mississippi should give Gen. Harrison a majority of 100,000 every electoral vote would be returned to Cleveland, and so several other rebel states. So far as the electoral votes are concerned the returns might as well be sent in to day as a month hence. Elections in the South are a roaring farce when they are not bloody tragedies, and are undermining the foundations of popular government. These abominable outrages cannot continue forever. The South is sowing to the wind and must sooner or later reap the whirlwind. God is in history and his hand will be seen in the future of this nation as it has been in the past. There was a time when the calamities of a long and dreadful war might have been averted by doing justice to the colored race. But the opportunity was lost and "for every drop of blood drawn by the lash another was shed by the sword," and we were compelled to acknowledge that God is just and his judgment true and righteous altogether. Heaven forbid that the South should in the future witness a repetition of the scenes of St. Domingo, but this or something worse awaits her unless her present policy in the treatment of her colored citizens is abandoned. Millions of men cannot always be kept quiet with their necks under the heels of their tyrant oppressors. The rebel brigadiers command the democratic party of to day, and the president is ready to concede to the South almost everything it desires. Union soldiers are crowded to the wall to make room for men who fought to destroy the nation and who are still traitors at heart. There is an evident purpose to reconstruct the supreme court in such a manner as to secure decisions that will favor the South. This plan if successful will neutralize almost all that was gained for the cause of right and justice by a four years war. The president does not hesitate to nominate for a place on that bench a politician who has no reputation as a lawyer and who is notorious as the colleague of Jeff Davis and a bitter enemy of the colored people. An applicant for office finds the fact that he was a pestilent copperhead during the war no impediment to his success. He is on the whole a little more likely to secure presidential favor than if he had been a staunch defender of the Union. Nothing seems to gratify Grover Cleveland more than an opportunity to veto a bill granting a pension to a battle scarred and needy veteran. He fairly revels in these vetoes. We shall see in a few weeks how they are regarded by the old soldiers and their friends. A [illegible] would [illegible] hold all of these who will vote for his re-election.

But I turn from this bad party to a party that reminds one of the leg of mutton described by Dr. Johnson, to the republican party, and suggest some reasons why it deserves the support of all patriotic citizens. Of this party it may be said:

First. That it has a glorious history. The man who can forget what it has done not only for our country but for the cause of justice and humanity the world over, has brass enough to forget his obligations to the mother who bore him. When the national convention that met in Chicago in June last declared that the republican party was a friend of temperance and morality and favored all wise legislation that promoted morality and the honor and welfare of the nation, well informed and candid men everywhere recognized the declaration as timely. A similar deliverance from the St. Louis convention would have been scouted as absurdly false from one end of the country to the other. No political party is made up of men who are perfect, but I think that all the republican party is the best one the world has ever seen. An overwhelming majority of the friends of temperance, law and order and of whatever gives strength and dignity to a state, are members of this party, and so far as I know and believe, have no thought of abandoning it. Now and then a little fellow withdraws from its ranks under the impression that his withdrawal will create a great commotion, but he is missed about as much as the fly from the bullock's horn.

I am a republican for the further reasons:

Second—That I believe the party is substantially right on the tariff question. It stands for the protection of American industries and for a revenue system under which the country has enjoyed such prosperity as has no parallel in the history of nations. Why should the system be abandoned for one that makes us largely dependent upon the Old World? The absurd pretense that the workingmen of Europe are as well paid and as prosperous as the same classes in the United States is disposed of by the fact that while thousands of the former come to this country for employment and to make for themselves homes, it rarely happens that an American workman emigrates to Europe. Should the democratic party succeed in carrying their free trade policy into effect all this may be changed. I hardly think the people of the United States are prepared for such a change at present, or that Cleveland's letter of acceptance or the Mills bill will convert them.

I desire the success of the republican party for the further reason:

Third. That it is pledged to recognize the rights of colored citizens and to treat them fairly. It cannot be claimed that the party has done its whole duty toward this wronged and abused race, but almost the only friends of the colored people have been within the republican party. And the colored people understand and appreciate this fact. During the war the rebels did their utmost to persuade the colored people that the Yankees were their enemies, who when they had an opportunity would lay upon them heavier burdens than any from which they had suffered in slavery. All these efforts were fruitless. The colored people believed none of these colossal lies. They had prayed for the coming of the boys in blue and when they came hailed them as their deliverers and saviors. When a Union soldier escaped from Andersonville, Libby Prison or any other of the rebel slaughterpens every colored man that he met was his friend, ready to divide his last crust with him and risk his life in piloting him to a place of safety. Efforts are now made to divide the colored vote of the South but with little success. As a general rule it is easier to kill a colored man or drive him from the polls than to induce him to vote a democratic ticket. If we could have a free vote and an honest count in November the republican ticket would sweep the country (the South included) like a tornado. With the election of Harrison and a national legislature in sympathy with him the moral and [illegible] of the government now used to [illegible] the colored citizen would be turned to his favor, and we might reasonably expect that no more members would be admitted to congress whose certificates of election were secured through violence or fraud.

Finally I propose to vote the republican ticket for the reason that their candidate for the presidency is every way worthy to be the standard bearer of our unrivaled and patriotic party. Gen. Harrison's character and career call for no vindication or apologies. He is a model American citizen, exemplary in all the relations of life, most respected and esteemed where he is best known. A good and valiant soldier in the hour of the nation's peril, it is natural that his brother veterans should now rally to his support with enthusiastic pride. His election will be an honor to the nation and the signs of the times point to his election in spite of the dragooning of the South into the support of Cleveland by the rebel brigadiers. The people of the country have weighed the present administration, found it wanting, and propose to have a change after the 4th of March next. Vermont and Maine have spoken; the other states will be heard from in due time and we can hardly doubt what their response will be. It will most certainly silence the cranks who have been vociferously proclaiming that the republican party is dying or dead.

Unpleasant for the "Reformers."

New York Epoch (Dem.)

One cannot help wishing that the democratic campaign managers had got along without a check for $10,000 from the president to the campaign fund. In the first place it is extremely desirable that the president of the United States should not identify himself with the struggle for his own re-election. In the second place a contribution from the president to the party campaign fund is likely to be interpreted as a hint to his associates and subordinates to contribute without much reference to their ability to do so. This seems to be what has happened, for according to the Sun the secretary of state, the secretary of the treasury, the secretary of the navy and the postmaster general have each contributed $10,000. It is somewhat [illegible] added that but three members of the cabinet, Secretary Endicott, Secretary Vilas and the attorney general, gave nothing. It is to be presumed that they gave nothing for the simple reason that they could not afford it. The salary of a member of the president's cabinet is not enough to maintain a modest domestic establishment in Washington, so that a man who desires to live as his position demands must pay for it out of his own fortune. If he has a fortune he would do well not to aspire to the cabinet, especially if a campaign assessment of $10,000 is expected of him every four years.

A CLAIM TO HUMAN GRATITUDE

Charlotte Corday, the sad-faced, tender-hearted peasant girl of Normandy, made an era in history by one deliberate act.

Sickened by the saturnalia of the French revolution and moved to desperation as Robespierre and Marat were leading the flower of France to the guillotine, she determined that she would put an end to Marat's bloody reign.

Marat had himself said 200,000 victims for the guillotine.

He proposed to kill off the enemies of the revolution to make it perpetual.

Horrible thought!

Now what inspired the blood of this patriotic peasant maid?

Gaining access to his closely guarded quarters by a subterfuge, she found him in his bath, even then inexorable and giving written directions to further slaughter!

He asked her the names of the girondist deputies who had taken refuge in Caen. She told him and he wrote them down. "That is well. Before a week is over they shall all be brought to the guillotine."

At these words Charlotte drew from her bosom the knife and plunged it with superhuman force up to the hilt in the heart of Marat.

[illegible] Marat and expired under the [illegible].

In the Corcoran gallery at Washington is a famous painting of Charlotte, represented [illegible] the prison bars the day before her execution.

It is a thrilling, still picture, full of sorrow for her suffering country and of uncompromising hate for her country's enemies.

What a lesson in this tragic story! Two hundred, nay, five hundred thousand [illegible]! How would Marat have stretched [illegible] to his bloody position of power!

Methods are quite as murderous as [illegible] and they number their victims by the million.

The [illegible] history is full of murders by authority and by mistaken ideas. In the practice of medicine we know how many hundreds of millions have been allowed to die and as many more killed by [illegible] bigotry and by bungling.

But the age is [illegible]. Men and methods are improving. A few years ago it was worth one's professional standing to advise or permit the use of proprietary medicine. To day there are few physicians in any town in the country who do not regularly prescribe some form of proprietary remedy.

H. H. Warner, [illegible] the world as the discoverer of Warner's safe cure, [illegible] hunting up the old remedies of the Log Cabin days. After long and patient research he succeeded in securing some of the most valuable, among family records, and called them Warner's Log Cabin remedies, [illegible]

[illegible] they are sure to prove the [illegible] of the nations.

Corday did the world an incalculable service in ridding France of the bigoted and murderous Marat, just as this man is doing humanity a service by re-introducing to the world the simpler and better methods of our ancestors.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKETS

San Francisco Oct 11—Produce receipts during the past 24 hours include 14 000 ctls wheat 25 500 qr sks flour 10 500 ctls barley 2200 ctls oats 6600 sks potatoes

Freights—Tonnage in port suitable for grain carrying and not under engagement, is small amounting to about 20 000 tons, against some 65 000 tons at this time last year Tonnage in port engaged and loading 78 000 tons At this time last season there were only 6500 tons in port under engagement The tendency of grain freights during the week has been toward lower rates Exporters find it difficult to secure wheat at remunerative figures owing to speculative manipulation which has forced prices beyond legitimate export values Shippers therefore are cautious about taking up tonnage and as a rule prefer to secure cargoes before working charters Rates are nominal at 37s 6d for large iron and 38s 9d@40s for handy iron vessels

Wheat—Sample market is rather firmer although spot trading is not very active Current requirements for the loading fleet are well in hand No 1 shipping is being offered liberally at $1 65 which is above shippers' ideas At $1 62½ exporters would purchase quite freely but holders refuse to accept that figure and for the moment transactions are limited Options Business at the produce exchange was of moderate proportions at improved prices Sales were 600 tons buyer year at $1 73¼ 100 tons at $1 73½ 500 tons at $1 73 500 tons at $1 73¼ [illegible]00 tons at $1 73¾ Buyer season $1 83¾

FRUITS FOR NORTHERN STATES

The department of agriculture has just issued a bulletin under the division of pomology that has especial value to the most northerly parts of the states and territories This bulletin shows the interest taken in pomological matters by the government or its representatives in those matters It has been found impossible to grow many fruits in the extreme north and Canada Many experiments have been made to determine if any class of fruits can be acclimatized in Minnesota Dakota and the Lake Superior region of country, especially Along the western boundary the cold is lessened by the currents and winds of the western ocean, but an occasional severe touch of arctic weather destroys many trees that have previously grown and borne well A brief glance at this bulletin shows that the department has tried varieties of the strawberry, raspberry, gooseberry cherry, currant, blueberry, blackberry, mulberry, cranberry, apricot, plum peach grape, pear and apple, as well as many varieties of nut-bearing trees fitted for those northern climates This energy and judicious effort should result in something, for the same fruits and nuts that have done well in Russia and Siberia in equally severe climates, are introduced to settlers of the United States in northern districts heretofore found too inhospitable for such fruits of common varieties. It may be that some of these fruits and nuts will answer a good purpose for planting out in cold districts this side of the continental divide

MAKING MEAT ON THE FARM

Mr A S Powell of Linn county says hogs are very scarce there and can hardly be had at any price He saw $5 offered for shoats or stock pigs to fatten He says the butchers are to blame They killed the goose that laid golden eggs for when pork was abundant they gave only three and a half to four cents a pound for pork in the carcass and farmers became disgusted and would not raise pigs to fatten Now when they are satisfied they should make pork they have no hogs to fatten and cannot buy them The price paid by [illegible] won't pay the farmer for his outlay and labor and the butcher may be somewhat to blame but the farmer should have wit enough not to give up raising pigs because one year was not up to their idea There are other ways of the time coming [illegible] the [illegible] the [illegible] equalize

Farmers in Linn however are making much of their crop at [illegible] putting land in grass to raise steers and mutton sheep This is what all the Eastern states are doing and what Oregon must do to make farming a success Oregon is not going to stand still or retrograde but will go there and make progress Our farmers are growing wiser and this year thanks to a good season and better times they are becoming financially more independent a state of things that should be continued for all time

You get off some pretty rank things sometimes said the grocer to Bacon who was bending down over a box near the stove Yes replied Bacon modestly I just got off the firkin of butter there a few minutes ago —Yonkers Statesman

PEED'S MILL, TEXAS, June 21, 1888—The Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga—Gentlemen: One of my children was troubled with rheumatism and boils for about two years. We gave her various kinds of medicine, but without profit, and began to despair of curing her at all. I was persuaded to try your Swift's Specific. After she had used several bottles the diseases all disappeared, and she is now a hale, hearty and healthy girl twelve years old. Another child has just become afflicted in the same way, and I am using the S. S. S. and anticipate a prompt and permanent cure. N. C. WAGGONER.

RICH HILL, MO., July 7, 1888—The Swift Specific Co, Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: Our little girl when but three weeks old broke out with eczema. We tried the prescriptions from several good doctors, but without any special benefit. We tried S. S. S., and by the time one bottle was gone her head began to heal, and by the time she had taken six bottles she was completely cured. Now she has a full and heavy head of hair—a robust hearty child. I feel it but my duty to make this statement. Respectfully, H. T. SHOBE.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., June 27, 1888—The Swift Specific Co, Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: In 1886 I contracted blood poison and at once sought a physician, who treated me for several months. By his advice I went to Crab Orchard Springs, Ky., where his course of treatment was carefully observed. I recovered as I thought but the next spring pimples began to appear on my face and body. These gradually increased to sores and running ulcers. I was advised to try S. S. S. and immediately after taking it I commenced to improve slowly at first, but more rapidly afterwards, and soon nothing remained to tell of my trouble. My blood is now thoroughly cleansed, and my system free from taint and I owe my present condition—a perfect cure—to your medicine. I cheerfully give this statement that others who have suffered as I have may reap the same benefit. HARDY M. BUSY, 34 West Ninth St.

HOMER, LA., May 25, 1888—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: About two years ago my general health gave way entirely. I was so debilitated that I almost despaired of ever feeling well again. All that the physicians done for me brought no permanent relief. Friends insisted that I should give S. S. S. a fair trial, although I thought it would be throwing away money. After taking a thorough course my health and strength returned, and I must say that S. S. S. alone cured me as I discarded all others while using it. As a tonic I can most heartily recommend it; for general debility, it certainly is a specific. W. F. BRIDGES, J. P.

HOMER, LA.—I know Mr W. F. Bridges, and will say that his statement is correct. JOSEPH SHELTON, Druggist.

Extract from letter received Sept. 13th "It is impossible to give even an idea of what I have suffered for years. I tried everything and doctored with the best doctors on the coast—at times getting a few days' relief, only to be followed by a return of my stomach troubles. Last spring I began taking your Yerba Buena Bitters, and for two months now I eat everything that is placed before me my sleep is regular, and I again take pleasure in the society of my friends."

BEANS ON WHITE LAND.

A farmer who has some white land on his prairie farm says he one year put in beans on it with entire success Beans will ripen in good order there, and make a good crop when few other things will There is plenty of land in Oregon that will grow beans, and we use an immense quantity of them They are easily grown, and should be made a regular crop on many farms When we have ability to grow beans of all sorts it looks strange that we should allow California to send us a supply of things we can grow so well

What is more attractive than a pretty face with a fresh, bright complexion? For it use Pozzoni's Powder.

Pullman reservations made for all points east via the Northern Pacific Railroad. Office, No. 2 Washington street.

PORTLAND'S DAILY BUDGET.

Various Shipping and Navigation Notes—Lighthouse Improvement.

The Willamette at Last Begins to Rise—The Danube Takes Fifty-three Chinese to Hong Kong—Oregon City's Population

JEWELRY STORE BURGLARIZED.—Burglars entered the jewelry store of M. Flanders on the corner of First and Washington streets at an early hour yesterday morning and about $75 worth of goods were stolen. Entrance was effected through a thin door in the rear of the building. There had been a door there once, but it had long been out of use and so was papered over. This offered no resistance to an easy entrance. Considerable jewelry of a cheap grade was taken, which leads to the belief that the burglars, whoever they are, must be novices at the business. A clock standing on a shelf across the door broken in was knocked down, and when found in the morning the hands were stopped exactly at 4 o'clock. This shows at what hour the marauders must have been at work. The safe was not tampered with, while the show case containing the most valuable jewelry was also left alone. Either they could not distinguish the different kinds of jewelry or they must have heard the approach of a policeman, for they left without much booty. No trace either of them or the stolen goods has yet been found.

NAVIGATION NOTES.—The Toledo makes a special trip to-day to [illegible], but cannot be started for the [illegible] until a rainfall swells the river. The Three Sisters is now ready to run to the falls, its new license to [illegible] made necessary by the [illegible] from the Oregon Development [illegible] Company. This will probably be ready the current week, and the boat will be run to ply as far up as Dayton [illegible] as soon as the river rises sufficiently. A rise of five inches was yesterday reported above Oregon City, but the water at Yamhill bar is not yet deep enough to allow the O. R. & N. boats to run up to Dayton. Messrs. Powell & Ingalls of that place have some 90,000 bushels of wheat stored which they are anxious to market. It is thought that navigation will soon open there, however, though the experiment of entering the Yamhill was yesterday abandoned by the Orient.

WHAT IS OUR POPULATION?—Edgar Smith has just completed a canvass of Oregon City, says the Enterprise. His list makes a showing of 540 names. Other towns in computing their population estimate that one name in the directory represents a population of four. But that is doubtless too large a ratio for this place as it is a manufacturing town. Placing the population at two and one-half for each name listed would probably more nearly approximate the result. Upon this basis we would show a population of 2100, which would not be far out of the way. Even this low estimate indicates a population several hundred greater than has ever been enumerated before, but a great many have moved into town this season, so that the place is larger than it has ever been before.

BUOYAGE AT SHOALWATER BAY.—Lighthouse Inspector Capt. Beebree returned from his work in repairing the buoyage in Shoalwater bay yesterday morning. All the old buoys, long covered with moss and barnacles, were taken up and new ones put in their places. The work in the bay proper was completed, but the lighthouse tender Manzanita will yet remain a few days and change the buoys wherever necessary on the bars. For the past three or four days the water was so rough that work on the bars was impossible. If the weather gets favorable it will require but two days more to complete the work and the boat will then return. At low water the depth of the bars does not exceed eighteen feet. Capt. Beebree took the stage from Oysterville and came back overland.

THROWN FROM AN ENGINE.—A few days ago, says an Oregon City paper, the Salem switch engine was ordered to take a number of extra cars to Portland. At Woodburn J. H. Richard was invited to jump on by the trainmen and he accepted. The train was speeding along near [illegible] at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour, when the engineer suddenly discovered a hand car ahead of him and he immediately reversed the engine to prevent a collision. Richards had also seen the car, [illegible] he was looking out at the side of the cab when the lever was reversed. The shock caused him to lose his hold and he was thrown violently to the ground, one of his legs being broken in two places by the fall. The unfortunate man was taken to Woodburn.

STEAMER DANUBE.—The steamer Danube, which cleared yesterday for Vancouver, B. C., took away fifty-three Chinese who will take the Canadian Pacific steamer for Hong Kong. They might have crooned the old Scotch air, "We're going away but will never return," as they sailed, for under the provisions of the exclusion act it is not probable that any of them will ever set foot on the sacred soil of America again. Doubtless each of them has accumulated enough to give him a start in business in his native land, and so will not mourn for the country which excluded him.

RESCUED FROM OBLIVION.—There are many different ways of rescuing one's name from oblivion. Old Andy Boyle, the colored man who was janitor at New Market theater for many years and whose jolly black face will be remembered by thousands who visited that place, was the first man to make a deposit in the Portland Savings bank June 29, 1880. Mr. D. P. Thompson has had a large bromide picture of Andy made which is to hang in the bank as long as it stands. The picture is a very good one of Old Andy and will serve to keep his memory green for a long time.

FROM THE HOP FIELDS.—Mr. J. Carnahan, who left here about three weeks ago with a party of twenty to pick hops at Puyallup, returned yesterday with his party. The girls wore huge corsage bouquets of hops of great size, and many of the party carried specimens of hops which were wonderful to behold. Mr. Carnahan says the party had a very enjoyable time and liked hop-picking so well that they have contracted to go over for seven weeks next year. The entire hop crop of that section has been harvested in good shape and the hop growers are happy.

HE CONVINCED THEM.—Henry Weinhard, who recently returned from a trip to his old home in Germany, said that during his stay there he had THE OREGONIAN regularly sent to him. At first the people there could scarcely believe that such a great daily could be published away out in the wild West. He sent for extra copies and scattered them freely, and says the paper did more to convince the people of the rapid advancement and wonderful resources of this country than anything else could have done.

MUSIC IN THE PARADE TO-NIGHT.—It is expected that at least eight or ten bands will participate in the parade to-night. All of them have not reported yet, but they will no doubt be on hand before evening. Those that are known will take part and have already signified their intention to be on duty are: Marine band, Eighteenth regiment band, East Portland band, two bands from Oregon City and the [illegible] band. The indications are that there will certainly be music in the air.

MORE IMPROVEMENTS.—Henry Weinhard has just ordered another thirty-five ton refrigerator from Messrs. C. L. & A. Meese, the well known engineers, machinists and builders of ice and refrigerating machines of San Francisco. This firm is the most extensive of the kind on the coast. They make a specialty of the [illegible] ice and refrigerator machines for making ice and refrigeration in breweries, distilleries, packing houses and all places where a cold atmosphere is required.

GONE ON THEIR WEDDING TRIP.—Mr. W. H. Patterson and Miss Agnes Schroth, both of Portland, joined their fortunes at the hymeneal altar yesterday. The groom was pilot on the T. J. Potter under the captaincy of Archie Pease, and is now pilot on one of the Astoria night boats. Mr. and Mrs. Patterson have left for a brief wedding trip through Eastern Oregon.

SERIOUSLY ILL.—Mr. A. D. Simpson, a well known commercial man of San Francisco, is now lying very seriously ill at Good Samaritan hospital. He was sick a short time ago, but partially recovered. However he suffered a collapse and is very ill again. His many friends will be pleased to learn of Mr. Simpson's early convalescence.

BENEFITS OF LIBERAL ADVERTISING.—The agents who are selling the Sunnyside property say that they are reaping a full benefit of the extensive "ads" lately in THE OREGONIAN. They say the demand for and the sale of lots is quite a surprise to them. We do not see how it can be otherwise when one considers the beautiful location of Sunnyside and the ease with which persons of moderate means may acquire lots in this desirable spot.

MORE MINERAL DISPLAY.—Mr. W. L. Reynolds arrived in the city yesterday with something like 1100 pounds of mineral ore from Union county, Oregon. The collection embraces specimens of all the various mining properties of Union county and makes a fine display, which will be placed to-day in the Mechanics' pavilion.

TO ATTEND THE FAIR.—So that the people of Vancouver and vicinity can have an opportunity to attend the Mechanics' fair, the steamer Undine will leave Vancouver on Saturday evening at 6:30 o'clock for Portland, returning will leave Portland at 11:30 o'clock P. M.

NEED MONEY.—The assignee of L. Meyer & Co. must realize a certain amount of money within a certain time, and that is why he has put the whole stock—dry goods, boots and shoes, groceries, etc.—down at [illegible] prices. It is an awful sacrifice, but necessity knows no law.

BOUGHT THE HOTEL.—Mr. L. P. W. Quimby has purchased the Burton house, corner of Third and F streets, for $13,000. He will have the building raised and put another story under it, and it is understood open it as a hotel.

REPUBLICANS, PAY A VISIT.—Every republican is requested to call between the hours of 5 and 8 o'clock this evening at J. Selling & Co.'s store, where he will be presented with a [illegible] campaign handkerchief free of charge.

FLAMBEAU CLUB.—One of the features of the procession to-night will be the Flambeau club of fifty men in uniform. All members of the club are expected to meet at Union hall at 7 o'clock sharp.

NAMED HIM HARRISON.—In the house of L. P. W. Quimby a boy arrived quite recently, and the papa being an enthusiastic Harrison man gave the young man the name of the future president.

GOES INTO BUSINESS.—Mr. R. Weeks, formerly of Weeks & Morgan, will go into business again at the old stand, taking in Frank H. Churchill, late of [illegible] Smith's, as a partner.

BARGAINS TO-DAY.—Seventy-five different styles of new Toques, turbans, hats and bonnets, worth from $7 to $10, will be sold at $5 each at the Bouquet, 67 Morrison street.

MORE FAVORABLE ATTENTION has been paid to Highland by the people of Portland than they have ever given to any addition ever placed on the market.

I. O. O. F. BALL.—[illegible] Rebekah degree lodge give their second ball this evening at Arion hall. An excellent time may be counted on by all who attend.

DUCKS.—The steamer Salem will leave foot of Oak street at 3 o'clock Sunday morning with a party of hunters for Willamette slough.

OIL PAINTINGS.—The special sale of pictures by Mrs. J. F. Hayne will continue to-day at 128 First street at 2 o'clock.

THE BIG RALLY TO-NIGHT.

Everything in Readiness for the Huge Republican Demonstration

Where the Different Campaign Clubs and Organizations Will Assemble and Fall in Line. Route of March

To-night the big republican demonstration will take place in this city. From past preparations and present indications it promises to be the largest ever held in Oregon. Over 3000 are expected to be in line.

Harrison voters of 1840, Harrison club and the guests of the evening and speakers will rendezvous at Union hall, Union block, at 7:30 P. M. Carriages will start from the Stark street entrance.

Band.
Division Commander James P. Shaw and staff, consisting of C. H. Dodd, D. M. Dunn, H. Gould, [illegible], C. F. Deal, Dr. A. J. Giesy, W. A. Bray, J. W. Campbell.
Republicans at Large.
Harrison Voters of 1840 in Carriages.
President and Speakers in Carriages.

All who contemplate taking part in the parade on horseback should report to James P. Shaw at 7:30 o'clock Friday evening, corner Stark and First street.

LINE OF MARCH.

The route of march will be as follows: From Yamhill up Fourth to Main, up Main to Sixth, up Sixth to Columbia, down Columbia to First, down First to E, up E to Third, up Third to Taylor, up Taylor to East Park, up East Park to the speakers' stand on Park block between Salmon and Main, where the meeting will be called to order by the president, Hon. H. H. Northup.

THE SPEAKERS.

The following named gentlemen are expected to address the meeting: Hon. E. T. Barin, Hon. Van B. DeLashmutt, Hon. Geo. H. Williams, Judge J. R. Watson, Hon. M. C. George, Gen. Wm. Kapus, Hon. Rufus Mallory, Gov. George L. Woods, Hon. J. W. Whalley, Hon. W. Carey Johnson, Hon. S. R. Harrington and others.

One of Portland's Big Manufactories.

The tremendous increase in the output of Weinhard's brewery is proof of the excellence of the beer which this enterprising establishment turns out. The output this year will run upwards of 30,000 barrels. This is a very heavy increase over last season. In the manufacture of this 30,000 barrels Weinhard used 3,000,000 pounds of barley. He thus furnished a home market for the product of a large area of grain land for which he paid good prices. At about the average yield of barley he thus bought the product of nearly 2000 acres. He also used 40,000 pounds of hops. It is the building up of vast manufactories like this that creates a demand and a home market for the raw materials produced by the farmers, making valuable their land and giving employment to labor both in the city and country. The success of Weinhard's beer is due to its uniform excellence. He employs the best skilled workmen that can be had and the best material only is used in the manufacture of the beer. It is such a favorite with the lovers of good beer that it is universally used throughout the Northwest.

MR. THOMPSON CONFIRMED.

Congressman Hermann Substantiates What He Said About the Locks.

That Portion of the Columbia Will be Opened to Navigation, and Will be Improved by Further Appropriations

Wednesday's OREGONIAN contained letters in reference to the Dalles boat railway from Senators Dolph and Mitchell received by Hollon Parker, a Walla Walla delegate to the Columbia waterway convention. Both of the Oregon senators said that the bill appropriating $500,000 for the project is still pending in the house committee on railways and canals with but little prospect for consideration at this session.

Mr. Parker received another letter yesterday, and a highly encouraging one too, from Congressman Hermann, who, after touching upon the importance of the Columbia river improvement, substantiates what Mr. D. P. Thompson said in reference to the early opening of the Cascade locks in a recent meeting of the board of trade and in the waterway convention.

Congressman Hermann's work in regard to this very important project [illegible]. We are cheered with the hope that our recent appropriation for the locks will open that portion of the Columbia to navigation. Here is the full text of his letter:

THE LETTER.

WASHINGTON, [illegible]

H. Parker, Esq.—My Dear Sir: Your favor [illegible] is before me as to what is being done [illegible] to the opening of navigation [illegible] Columbia river.

As you are aware, the government [illegible] are preparing their plans and reports as to the opening of navigation at the dalles and [illegible]. It is natural that [illegible] in terms [illegible] who know little of the great importance of the work that [illegible] should know about what the improvement is to cost, and especially in view of the magnitude of the undertaking this fact is positive.

We therefore of the Oregon delegation were early impressed with the necessity for a preliminary survey and sanction by congress before we could hope for permanent appropriations. To this end we secured $[illegible] for surveys, plans, etc., which is now being completed.

TO BE OPENED.

We are cheered with the hope that our recent appropriation for the Cascade locks will open that portion of the Columbia to navigation [illegible]. This will enable us to concentrate more and more on the river further up, so that by continuing the present policy of the government as to internal and especial waterway improvements the time is not far distant when we may confidently look for continuous and uninterrupted navigation from Lewiston to the sea.

We are doing all that is possible in this direction, and by working in unison have accomplished much more than we anticipated.

I can suggest no special plan of cooperation to the Waterway convention other than a continuation of the excellent showing previously made as to the [illegible] importance of utilizing the Columbia river for the purposes of commerce to the very head of settlements, and to [illegible] the reclaiming of it by national aid from the various obstructions which now render it comparatively useless for so many miles.

AN INTERSTATE WATERWAY.

This grand waterway is interstate. It is national in the highest sense and ranks at least third in order with the great rivers of this nation, and hence appeals to every patriotic American for an earnest, sincere, thorough and intelligent consideration.

Since congress will not adjourn for some time yet, I [illegible] to remain at my post of duty here, and hence shall not have the pleasure of greeting you upon the [illegible] of the Waterway convention. Very truly yours,

BINGER HERMANN.

WHAT MAJ. HANDBURY SAYS.

Maj. Handbury, U. S. engineer, who is in charge of the work at the Cascade locks, is of opinion that Mr. D. P. Thompson misunderstood Maj. Post in the matter of the locks being made ready for the passage of boats by the expenditure of the present appropriation.

Mr. Thompson is quite certain that he correctly stated what Maj. Post said, and the matter will be left to Maj. Post to decide.

At all events, whatever Major Post may have said, it is quite certain that the locks cannot be put in a condition for the passage of boats with the present appropriation.

In this case Mr. Thompson says a portage road will certainly be built in time to handle the crop of next season. There is a very good route for a road on the Washington territory side, better than the route occupied by the present road there.

Major Handbury is buying more machinery for excavating and will build an inclined plane and a railroad to remove dirt from the huge excavation, which will be a much more expeditious way than the derrick now in use.

ELECTION AND INSTALLATION.

Proceedings of the Second Day's Session of the Knights of Pythias Grand Lodge

Pursuant to adjournment the state of Oregon grand lodge of Knights of Pythias met yesterday morning at 9 o'clock at Castle hall. A resolution was passed fixing Astoria as the next place of meeting. This will occur the second Tuesday in October 1889.

Election of officers being in order, W. F. Hume of Albina Lodge No. 21 was chosen grand chancellor, O. H. Irvine of Albany grand vice chancellor, and A. A. Cleveland of Astoria grand prelate for the ensuing year.

At this stage of the proceedings T. A. Stephens entered the lodge room, asked the privilege of the floor and announced the death of Oscar I. Clay, representative from Castle lodge No. 13, and deputy grand chancellor for Portland. A committee was appointed to prepare appropriate resolutions in his honor, and out of respect to his memory the session adjourned to 2 o'clock P. M.

Upon reassembling, the election of officers was proceeded with, resulting as follows: Grand keeper of seals and records, Ward S. Stevens, Portland; grand master of exchequer, John Holmes, Portland; grand master at arms, C. L. Bayard, The Dalles; grand inside guard, Adam Crossman, La Grande; grand outside guard, Chas. Fellows, Portland; grand trustee for three years, Geo. W. Jett, Baker City.

Resolutions were then offered, signed by the committee, W. F. Hume, A. A. Cleveland and Jesse Waddell, eulogizing the character and services of Oscar I. Clay and recounting his Pythian history. These were adopted by a silent rising vote unanimously. The jurisdiction was redistricted into twenty-one districts.

Numerous minor amendments were made to Grand and subordinate lodge constitution and by-laws. It was recommended to lodges to levy contributions for the relief of the fraternity in yellow fever districts. The finance committee reported, estimating the Grand lodge expenses for the current year at $2200, and recommending a tax of 80 cents per capita for the purpose, payable semi-annually.

At the evening session the foregoing officers were duly installed by Supreme Representative D. Buchanan. At the request of the grand chancellor elect, M. Buchanan, then, secret session being entered into, instructed the lodge in the secret work of the order as received by him at Cincinnati last June.

Following this a resolution was passed deciding to attend the funeral of Oscar I. Clay as a lodge.

Adjourned to meet at 9 A. M. to-day.

AT THE THEATER

"The Corner Grocery" was repeated last evening at New Park theater by Dan Sully and his company. The play was enjoyed by all.

To-morrow afternoon a matinee will be given.

THE BENEFIT TO-NIGHT.

This evening "Pap" Sheffield, who has for so long presided at the box office at the New Park, takes a benefit, and it should be a rousing one. There will be a double bill and the Dan Sully company will be seen in one of their best and most amusing plays. Tickets are on sale at Prentice's, where reserved seats can be had.

"HIS NATURAL LIFE."

Next Monday evening Mr. Chas. C. Maubury and Nellie Boyd, supported by a strong company, will make their appearance at the New Park. They will appear in "His Natural Life." Speaking of the play a San Francisco paper says:

"His Natural Life" is eminently a pictorial play, with the strongest kind of human interest. Its first distinctive feature was the splendid manner in which it has been staged. Heavy set after heavy set follow quick upon each other, and all are most elaborate and beautiful. The manner in which the drama is acted could hardly have been improved upon in this city. The cast is an elaborate one, taking in many people, not one of whom could be found fault with. Chas. C. Maubury is a fine, manly actor, hearty and warm blooded in his style and yet not given to overacting. The previous excellent impression he made in San Francisco has been renewed with redoubled force. Ingo Tyrrell, who is an actor as well as an author, has an easy, light, pleasant style, which came into exhibition at nearly considered places at times. The other characters were in most competent hands, and the play was a great success.

SHE WANTS HER BOY

Mrs. Scanntell Thinks Her Son Marshall Has Been Smuggled Off to Sea

Yesterday afternoon a woman in an excited frame of mind came into the police station and asked Capt. Cardwell what course to pursue in order to get back her boy, whom she supposed had left for the briny deep.

Her boy was last seen by her Wednesday forenoon, and when he failed to return, lingering about the docks and boat landings, she came to the conclusion that he had been smuggled off to sea. She had previously been to the custom house and had been told that the ship Oberon had left the city yesterday morning. Being asked whether her boy might not have embarked on his own accord, she stated positively that he did not.

"My boy has never spoken of going to sea," she said, "and I am sure that some of the big hands have smuggled him aboard. He is a very frail boy and only 11 years of age. His complexion is light, hair very thin and almost white." [illegible]

The captain wrote out a dispatch for her, which she took to the telegraph office, with the hope of intercepting the ship before it gets to sea. All she wants is to get her boy back. She will gladly pay all expenses incurred in bringing him back to her.

The woman's name is Mary Scanntell, and her missing boy Marshall.

LIVELY BUSINESS IN APPLES

The High Rates of Transportation Operates Much to the Detriment of Trade

There is a lively business being done by commission men in apples, in this city now. Apples are coming in very freely, and in the main are very good. From some old orchards the fruit is not good. The Eastern apple crop is large and bars our fruit out of Colorado. There is also a fine crop of apples in the Boise country.

The shipping trade here this year is confined to Eastern Oregon and Washington and Montana. That section would take a great deal of our apple crop if it were not for the almost prohibitory rates charged by railroads. The rate on apples to St. Paul or to New Orleans or Texas points is only $1.12½, while to Pomeroy it is $1, and that place is only 320 miles away.

A gentleman from Pomeroy said to Mr. H. L. Bittin yesterday:

If freight rates were reasonable you could send 10,000 pounds to Pomeroy to-morrow. It seems singular that rates are cheap to places where people do not want to ship, and outrageous to points where there is a market. The problem should have included railroads among the things the ways of which are past finding out.

SLAUGHTERING OF DEER.

The Oregon Alpine Club Are Moving to Purpose in This Matter

Circular Letter Sent to All Parts of the State and Legislative Aid Petitioned to Stop This Wanton Work

The Oregon Alpine Club has taken hold of an important work. The subject of prominent concern, deer killing in the southern part of the state and coast counties, is an open book to all. Deer killing has been carried on in all parts of the state, but most extensively in the southern and coast counties. As long as deer have been plenty the whole slaughter has been approved, or at least allowed by the silence and indifference of the people.

On a recent expedition of some of the members of the Alpine club to the southern part of the state the alarming extent of deer killing in that section has come to light. Deer there are killed for their hides, and hundreds of dollars worth are often shipped from one little station. In some places single individuals have from seven to eight camps which are moved about from place to place.

The members of the Alpine club, seeing that the extermination of deer in our state, if this wholesale slaughter is allowed to continue, will soon be complete, have taken active steps to prevent such a consummation. This evil has long been known to many of our people, but none have dared to take the initiative step to remedy it. The Alpine club now comes to the front, and it may be added means business. The committee appointed at the last meeting to draw up proper petitions to be circulated and then sent to the state legislature at the opening of the session has completed its labors.

Letters will be sent to all parts of the state asking parties interested in the preservation of our game to use all diligence in securing signatures to the petition blanks with which they will be furnished. The following is a copy of the letters that will be sent:

"Realizing the fact that the law on our statute books is wholly inadequate to deal with the crime of 'deer slaughter,' your earnest co-operation is solicited in securing the passage of a bill by the next legislature that will successfully remedy the evil. With that end in view will you have the kindness to circulate the inclosed petition in your locality and secure all the signatures thereto that you can, returning the same to the Oregon Alpine Club, Portland, Or., not later than December 20, 1888. We would also esteem it a special favor if you would personally intercede with the delegation from your county to the legislature, in favor of such a law. Very respectfully,

M. C. GEORGE,
VAN B. DELASHMUTT,
THOS. N. STRONG,
W. G. STEEL,
Committee."

It is also desired that parties in any part of the state where such deer killing is practiced will send all the information possible, especially of a statistical nature, to the Oregon Alpine Club.

PETITION.

Petitions reading as follows will be sent with each letter:

To the Honorable Legislative Assembly of the State of Oregon: Your petitioners, residents of the state of Oregon, respectfully ask for the passage of a more stringent law prohibiting the slaughter of deer for their hides and providing means for carrying the same into effect.

And your petitioners will ever pray.

Many of these letters and petitions will no doubt fall into the hands of the country press, and it is the express desire of the Alpine Club that those that do receive them will do their utmost to agitate the necessity of enacting such laws as will tend to preserve the deer and other game of which our state now so justly is proud.

Millinery Parlors.

No business house in this city is at the present time of more attraction to the ladies than the beautiful millinery parlor of Misses Carnahan & Sawyer, and they are kept busy from morning until night attending to the wants of their customers and showing their beautiful display of elegant selected millinery, and their excellent reputation in this line is enough to the ladies of Portland that it will more than repay them to visit their millinery parlor at 131 First street, where they can see a well displayed stock in all the new and latest designs.

The Mitchell, Lewis Co.'s Display at the Fair.

All must admit that the Mitchell, Lewis Co. (limited), have a most attractive display at the fair. Their exhibit is such that it interests almost every one. Their fine farm wagons—the Mitchell—is a great favorite with farmers of the Northwest. They have an exceptionally fine display of spring wagons, buggies, carriages, sulkies and farm machinery and implements of every description. Send for one of their catalogues.

FROM THE SUNDOWN STATE.

A Letter From Dr. Joseph Holt, Now Residing in Portland

An Eloquent Exposition of the State's Superb Attractions—Its Future More Brilliant Than Any of the Sisterhood

Dr. Joseph Holt, formerly of New Orleans, but now a resident of Portland, writes quite a long letter to the Memphis Appeal, a portion of which appears below. The letter is published in the Appeal of September 30. Dr. Holt says:

Having been requested by friends in Memphis, New Orleans and elsewhere to write, giving some account of this country which I have adopted as my home, and finding it quite impossible to address a letter to each one severally, I will comply in a manner even more satisfactory by writing to the Appeal.

In reply to special inquiries I will refer all to the board of immigration of this city, which will send upon request, free, their admirable and trustworthy literature on the subject of the great Northwest, the most attractive region of the United States. It is little known east of the Mississippi as the great [illegible] of central Africa. I can only [illegible] in general terms my observations concerning Oregon as an inviting theater for the industrious and enterprising in quest of a home and a delightful home.

Writing this letter in response to inquiries is purely an act of love for the [illegible]. [illegible] it may perhaps be as the casting of bread upon the waters for some sun's orchard [illegible] of the Mississippi valley.

I will purposely avoid the description touching scenery and climate [illegible] the never failing and abundant harvests, the extraordinary quantity, size and [illegible] of fruit and vegetables, because a plain statement of actual facts would sound to Eastern and Southern ears like the wild exaggerations of an enthusiast. I will temper my statements with the humdrum monotony of the Arkansas swamp, so to speak, which is about the lowest dead level of unity truth a writer could select as his base.

Considered climatically, in variety and extent of resources, in present prosperity and assured prospects for a brilliant future, Oregon is incomparably ahead of any other state in the Union.

In making such a sweeping statement I am thoroughly guarded, for, having visited every part of the United States, I am reasonably competent to judge by comparison.

To come here, however, and succeed without the aid of capital already in hand, requires such elements of manhood as energy, willingness to turn a ready hand to any employment for present support, and a spirit of contentment. With good habits established, purpose and a determination to succeed, the field is here open to all that ambition could desire as the reward of honorable effort.

For the timid, the idle and the dissolute, this country, with its population and driving energy of truest American stamp, with its love of law and order, together with a public sentiment in favor of an industrious life, is about the last such persons should select. Wholly out of place here, they would soon be driven to the wall to make room for their superiors. This atmosphere is unhealthy for all such.

It would be [illegible] in the brief compass of a letter to attempt a particular mention of the vast and varied resources of Oregon, [illegible] of its commanding advantages, its [illegible], its splendid system of public schools and private educational institutions, its churches, all arts and all else that belong to the highest progressive enlightenment and the [illegible]. I will mention incidentally that the city has raised for improvement of [illegible] its own streets within the past six months $[illegible] and upwards, without an effort.

These facts are better appreciated when it is remembered that on account of the difficulty of access this section was until within the last five years almost unknown.

Now, however, with its steamship lines and its transcontinental railways centering here with their pulsing life into every part of the country, the wonderful prosperity and the extraordinary attractions of the great Northwest and thousands of the best citizens from the Mississippi valley and states of the Eastern seaboard are pouring in under no stimulus of a speculative boom, but drawn by inducements of a normal kind, are bringing their families to make their homes in this new Western empire, and to become an integral part of its greatness.

I speak with the assurance of ascertained fact when I say that no man who has lived here three months can return to his home east of the Rocky mountains and contented ly remain there.

Among the many thousands of others I tried this myself, and although finding myself again in my old home with the delightful renewal of former associations, and every inducement that hosts of friends and a success could offer to remain there, I soon became thoroughly discontented and actually unhappy because of a continued longing for the cool and life-giving climate, the majestic scenery of snow-capped mountains, the lovely valleys clothed in richest verdure, and the cold limpid waters of Oregon.

The wisest move I ever made was when I laid aside every tempting consideration and came as I hope to live and die on this Pacific slope, for this is essentially a white man's country, and public sentiment is unanimous and absolute that it shall so continue.

All the conditions of life here are powerfully conducive to the ultimate perfection of the highest race, for all the phenomena of nature are gentle: a delightful climate, a pure, bracing atmosphere, no extremes of heat or cold, no dreadful alarms nor abiding terror of destructive forces, no storms, whirlwinds or lightning, no pestilences, grasshoppers or caterpillars, no irritating or dangerous insects, reptiles or beasts, except a few rattlesnakes and bears out in mountains far removed from human abode; all forms of food—the cereals, meats, dairy products, fruits and vegetables in profusion and of the very best quality; indeed the fruits and vegetables in every point of excellence surpass any on this continent; a rich soil watered by genuine rains (no artificial irrigation), the finest timbers, the mines and fisheries, every element essential to health, comfort and the accumulation of wealth is here, almost begging to be utilized and enjoyed.

Y. M. C. A. GYMNASIUM

Annual Opening This Evening—Formation of Classes—Propitious Outlook, Etc.

The Y. M. C. A. gymnasium will be formally opened to the members at 8 o'clock tonight. The evening will be devoted to the formation of classes for the season and to general acquaintance making between the old members and those just entering. The instructor, Henry Brown, will be introduced to the new members.

The entire gymnasium has been refitted and remodeled throughout, so that now everything is in first class shape. New members are joining every day, and the indications now are that this will be a very successful season. The classes certainly will be large.

Mr. Brown, who has been connected with the institution for some time, continues as its instructor. As there is considerable interest being awakened in all manner of athletic sports he looks for a large attendance, and anticipates that in the coming season good work will be done.

The following board of seven constitute the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium committee for the ensuing year: Arthur Hedderly, F. H. Flemming, J. C. Hillman, Dr. E. C. Brown, Dr. T. L. Nicklin, J. Blied, Adam Neal.

The reception to the new secretary, C. W. Beers, has been postponed till next Wednesday, the 7th.

A CURE FOR DIARRHOEA.—Mr. J. A. Burulson, of Coburg, Montgomery Co., Ia., has found out how he can cure any case of Diarrhoea. Two of his children had the disease for about six weeks. He tried four different Patent Medicines without benefit, but he finally got hold of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which he says completely cured them, and is confident it will cure any case when the plainly printed directions are followed. Sold by L. Blumauer & Co.

Oregon's Favorite Beer.

Weinhard's beer, which has been celebrated as Oregon's best beer ever since 1862, is now so universally used that one scarcely ever runs across any other make. As a pure and healthful drink there is nothing equals it in the Northwest.

Purchase your tickets and reserve your sleeping car accommodation at No. 2 Washington street, office Northern Pacific Railroad.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
ABSOLUTELY PURE.

For quick raising, the Royal Baking Powder is superior to all other leavening agents. It is absolutely pure and wholesome, and of the highest leavening power. It is always uniform in strength and quality and never fails to make light, sweet, most palatable and nutritive food. Bread, biscuits, muffins, cake, etc., raised with Royal Baking Powder may be eaten hot without distressing results to the most delicate digestive organs. It will keep in any climate without deterioration.

Prof. H. A. Mott, U. S. Government Chemist, after examining officially the principal baking powders of the country, reported:

"The Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure, for I have so found it in many tests made both for that company and the United States Government.

"Because of the facilities that company have for obtaining perfectly pure cream of tartar, and for other reasons dependent upon the proper proportions of the same, and the method of its preparation, the Royal Baking Powder is undoubtedly the purest and most reliable baking powder offered to the public.

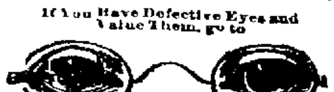
SIGHT IS PRICELESS
If You Have Defective Eyes and Value Them, go to



REED & MALCOLM.
For your Spectacles and Eye-glasses. It is the only establishment in the Northwest where they are measured on thorough scientific principles. Lenses ground, if necessary, to correct each particular case. No visual defect where glasses are required too complicated for us. We guarantee our fitting to be absolutely perfect. Our new [illegible], an instrument to measure the strength of the eye, is the most complete the best that science has produced, and is the only one ever invented that will give the exact amount of imperfection in one's sight.
